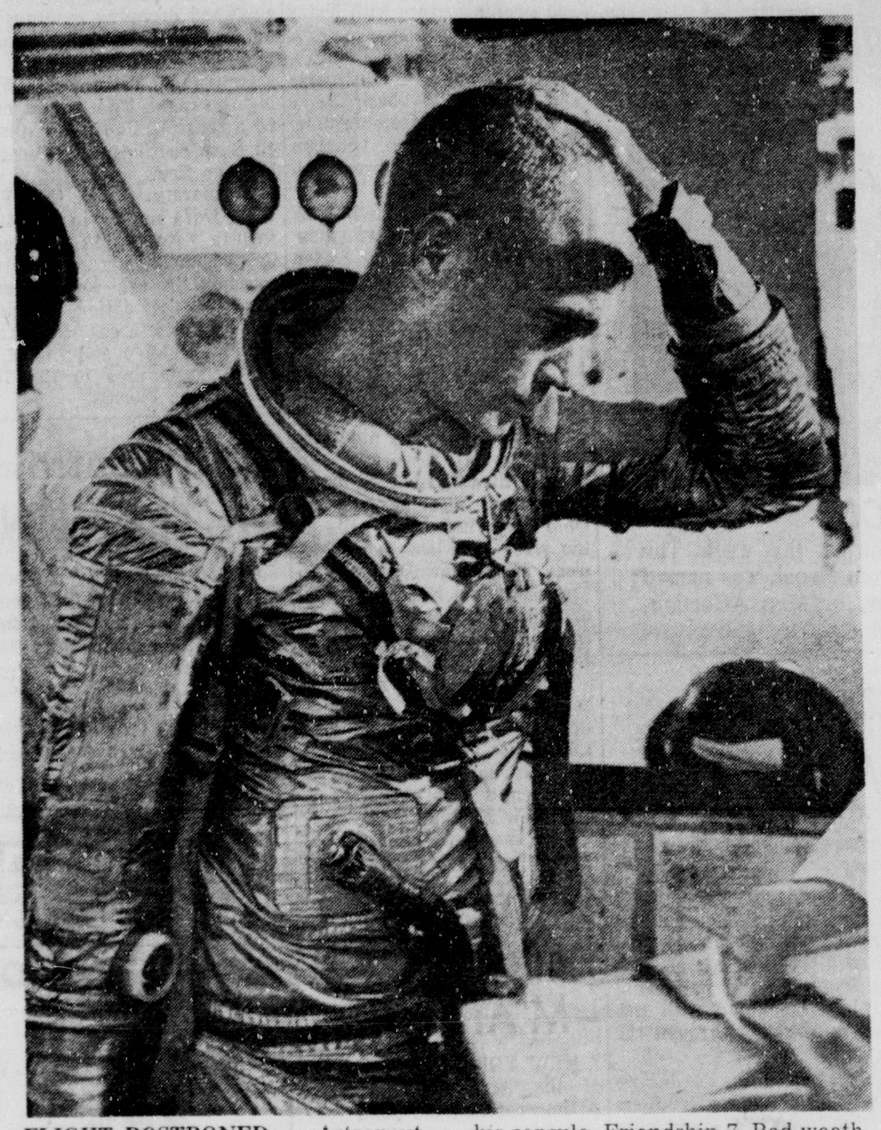
Astronaut's Orbit Shot Is Called Off—Weather



FLIGHT POSTPONED — Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. put his hand to his head shortly after he was taken from his capsule, Friendship 7. Bad weather postponed his attempt to orbit the earth on a shot from Cape Canaveral.

U. S. Likely To Try It Again Next Week

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The long-awaited, 'round-the-world space flight of astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. was postponed again today — this time because of weather — and President John F. Kennedy expressed disappointment that was shared by all Americans.

The weather outlook for the next two days was reported unfavorable, indicating the flight may be delayed until early next week.

Probably no one was more unhappy than the sturdy, 168-pound Glenn, a Marine lieutenant colonel.

During hours of waiting in the cramped confinement of his space capsule, waiting for the roar of Atlas rocket engines that would hurl him into space, he was reported in good spirits and anxious only to get on with his historic mission.

A heavy cloud cover over the launching area — which would have made it impossible to track the rocket visually in critical early stages of the flight-forced officials to call a postponement at 9:10 a.m. for at least 24 hours.

Two minutes before the "scrub" decision was announced, O. B. Lloyd, information officer for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, telephoned White House press secretary Pierre Salinger at Palm Beach, Fla.

Salinger immediately called the president, who had been watching preparations for the firing on television. He said Kennedy expressed his disappointment.

In Arlington, Va., Glenn's wife also was "disappointed but looking forward to the next shot."

In announcing the postponement, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said:

"The attempted launch of the MA-6 manned orbital flight is now scheduled not earlier than Thursday, Feb. 1,

Moon Probe Rocket Heads Toward Sun

GOLDSTONE TRACKING STATION, (UPI) — America's grotesque space robot, Ranger III, acting on a command from this missile tracking station, sped up by about 90 miles an hour early today on its picture-taking trip past the moon.

Scientists said the added speed was "just enough so that the rocket will go on around the sun instead of returning to earth."

The increased speed also would bring the spacecraft to within about 25,000 miles of the moon—slightly closer than earlier anticipated—and would cut down the travel time by about one and a half hours.

It also would enable Ranger III's television cameras to take the nearest and possibly the best photographs of the moon's far side and relay them back to earth.

The TV cameras will be turned on from here late tomorrow morning if all goes as planned.

The 727-pound Ranger III was to have crash landed on the surface of the moon. But the Atlas rocket that gave it the first boost away from earth at 3:30 p.m. (EST), yesterday pushed it too fast too soon.

The correction command was transmitted by radio from this isolated tracking station on the Mojave Desert at 5 a.m. (EST). The station is about 200 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

Scientists said it would take some time to determine whether the command had been executed properly. They said several hours of tracking would be needed.

In the new trajectory, the rocket should be within transmitting range for 24 hours today.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Molotov Fate

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Supreme Soviet (parliament) has decreed the name of diehard Stalinist Vyacheslav M. Molotov be erased from all geographical places and public landmarks throughout the Soviet Union, it was announced today.

Also ordered erased were the names of the other members of the so-called "anti-party" Stalinist faction—ex-Premier Georgi Malenkov, ex-president Klement Voroshilov and former Deputy Premier Lazar Kaganovich.

The late Premier Josef Stalin's name already has been wiped off the Soviet map.

Laos Fighting

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Planeloads of fresh Royal Army troops poured into the embattled Laotian town of Nam Tha today in an effort to save it from attacking pro-Communist rebels.

Reinforcements were thrown in to support Mobile Group 12 which is charged with defending a vital ridge 12 miles east of the provincial capital in northwest Laos.

Group headquarters reported that it was still dug in along the ridge, despite five days of heavy fighting and steady pounding by rebel mortars and artillery.

'Run And Hide'

IRVING, Ill. (UPI) — The last words of Mrs. Homer Lowrey may have been a shout to her six children: "Run and hide!" The children were orphaned by what authorities said today was a murder-suicide.

Montgomery County Sheriff Harold Whitten said Homer Lowrey, 41, shot his wife, Evelyn, 37, with a shotgun yesterday and then killed himself. The six children, ranging in age from 3 to 14, witnessed the shootings, Whitten said.

One of the children said their mother shouted "Daddy's lost his mind! Run and hide!"

Molten Steel Spills

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) —A huge crucible at the Volta Redonda Steel Mill tipped over today and spilled 60 tons of molten steel on 50 workers. Seventeen workers were killed and the other 33 were burned.

Reports from the mill, 80 miles from Rio de Janeiro, said a cable broke, causing the crucible to tip. The mill caught fire but the blaze was extinguished quickly.

Confesses Slaying

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Schoeneweg, 26, a handyman who previously had confessed two murders, told police last night that he was the prowler who stabbed a college girl to death in 1959.

The victim was Linda Edna Martin, 21. Officers said Schoeneweg killed her when she surprised him as he was trying to steal her purse in her boyfriend's apartment.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The U.N. Security Council was summoned to meet Tuesday on Katanga's secession from the Congo.

20 Hemisphere States Agree On Red Ban

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (UPI) — The foreign ministers of 20 American republics agreed today that a Communist state cannot be a member of the Organization of American States (OAS). But they still had not decided how to expel Cuba.

A small work group of foreign ministers including Secretary of State Dean Rusk met to try to draft a final resolution that would carry out the obvious meaning of the OAS decision and still reconcile strongly divergent viewpoints.

The agreement that a Communist nation cannot belong to the OAS came at a meeting of nine foreign ministers representing all points of view—except that of Cuba. Rusk expressed optimism a final resolution to expel Cuba could now be worked out.

Informed sources said Brazil and Mexico still insisted that the OAS charter must be amended before Cuba is ousted.

Present at the meeting today were the foreign ministers of the United States, Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Venezuela, Uruguay, Guatemala and Mexico.

Russ Claim Fear Halted Launching

LONDON (AP)—The Russians asserted tonight that fear of a launching failure was the real reason for postponing today's space shot.

A Moscow radio broadcast said "The fact is that officials at Cape Canaveral were alarmed by the failure of yesterday's launching of a rocket in the direction of the moon."

Dope Trial Session Ends In An Uproar

Allegations that attractive blonde Anna Marie Kellam, 25, had taken "nude" or "semi-clothed" photographs of herself into San Quentin Prison sent the dope-smuggling trial into an uproar last night.

The trial, recessed until 10 a.m. Tuesday, ended on a wild note about 5 p.m. yesterday with five attorneys bobbing up and down like jumping jacks, screaming and yelling.

A San Quentin convict named Steve Oropeza, 25, Los Angeles robber, was brought into court at closing time on the motion of defense attorneys, who contended Oropeza has pictures of Mrs. Kellam.

Judge N. Charles Brusatori subpoenaed Oropeza, ordering the prison warden to produce the convict "without removal of any pictures from his person."

When the chained Oropeza entered the courtroom, Judge Brusatori carefully reminded the convict of his rights — that he need not testify or produce anything if he feels that would incriminate or degrade him.

Los Angeles attorney Frank Duncan said he did not want Oropeza sworn in for testimony; "I just want an opportunity to talk to him." Prosecutor Bruce B. Bales called the procedure "highly improper."

The judge told Duncan he could talk to the convict if the convict is willing, then proceeded to adjourn court.

When it became evident that court would recess to Tuesday and convict Oropeza would be led back to San Quentin, attorney Duncan touched off the biggest uproar thus far in the four-day trial.

"I don't want evidence destroyed in the meantime," Duncan yelled. "What is Mr. Bales afraid of! He is afraid of the truth!"

Public Defender Peter Allen Smith shouted that he had just heard from Oropeza that guards at San Quentin had not permitted Oropeza to bring the photographs with him. "Collu-

Corte Madera Creek Flood Control $7 Million 'Assured'

The Army Engineers Review Board has recommended approval of the long-discussed seven-million-dollar Corte Madera Creek flood control project, according to a Washington telegram from Rep. Clem Miller (D-Corte Madera).

This is considered virtually to assure that the measure will go through Congress successfully during the approaching session.

"I'm tremendously happy," said County Supervisor William D. Fusselman in whose district the proposed project lies. "This has been a pet project of mine since the days before World War II when we worked for it through Marvelous Marin Inc., of which I was secretary-manager."

Expressing similar gratification and declaring that major credit belong to Fusselman, Public Works Director Marvin W. Brigham said he understood the matter had been under consideration by the review board for two days. Information for the board was asked by the Army Engineers office in San Francisco during the course of the discussion, and was furnished, Brigham said.

The project will take in much of the Ross Valley, and it will provide improvement in the channel of Corte Madera Creek from just east of the Greenbrae highway interchange, through Kentfield, Ross, San Anselmo, up into Sleepy Hollow and on to Oak Manor, also including Larkspur and Corte Madera.

Of the total of nearly seven million dollars to be spent, the state is expected to provide $1,800,000 for right of way.

State Demos Shout Brown Endorsement

By CHAPIN A. DAY

FRESNO—While their resolutions committee plowed through a 16-hour marathon session, California Democratic Council delegates last night and today shouted endorsement for the re-election of Gov. Edmund G. Brown and a slate of unopposed candidates for other state offices.

Getting CDC approval were Lt. Gov. Glenn M. Anderson, Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk, Treasurer Bert Betts, Controller Alan Cranston and state Sen. Richard Richards, who is seeking the nomination for U.S. senator.

The nearly 6,000 delegates and alternates also heard Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez of Texas give an amusing keynote speech in which he called California "the real leader—this is the new frontier here in California."

Gonzalez, newly elected in a bitter off-season election last fall, almost missed the opening session of this biannual endorsing convention. Plane delays from the East left him stranded in Los Angeles until Gerald N. Hill of Mill Valley, CDC vice president, flew in a private plane to pick him up. They didn't reach the convention until almost midnight.

Even then, however, the resolutions committee was still trying to take action on 140 proposed resolutions dealing with everything from fallout shelters, which the committee opposed by a 14 to seven vote, to acreage limitation on water.

Four of the resolutions came from Marinites.

Hans J. Schiller, of Mill Valley, a member of the committee, introduced one which pledged support to President Kennedy in his "continued fight" to establish a department of urban affairs and housing. Gerald Hill spoke in favor of its passage.

Schiller also proposed a resolution calling upon the 55 mayors who had signed proclamations establishing anti-communism week, to "reconsider and void their action."

Roger Kent of Kent Woodlands introduced and had approved by the committee a resolution endorsing the proposal to give the president power to lower tariffs.

Showdown Is Due On Test-Ban Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Britain are expected to tell Russia in blunt terms Monday that further separate negotiations on a nuclear test-ban treaty are useless because of the Soviet attitude on the critical inspection issue.

State Department officials said the record of Soviet maneuvers in recent weeks has made it plain that Moscow is opposed to a ban on nuclear weapons testing under controls. Russia is only interested now, they said, in trying to put the blame for the failure of the long negotiations on the United States and Britain.

Broad-scale negotiations on disarmament are scheduled to open at Geneva March 14 under U.N. auspices. The conference will be made up of 18 nations.

In Washington's view the prospects for any real progress toward ending the nuclear arms race are extremely dim.

But the Western powers intend to put fresh emphasis on the need for a nuclear test ban as a starting point.

Russia rejected yesterday, a U.S.-British offer made earlier this month to merge the test-ban talks with the forthcoming disarmament negotiations. This was a sharp turnabout in the Soviet position. For months Kremlin leaders, including Premier Nikita Khrushchev, had declared that they should be merged.

The next nuclear test meeting at Geneva is scheduled Monday and officials said that presumably that would be the last session of the series, which began more than three years ago. They said the United States and Britain would formally state their position at that time.

The Soviet maneuver followed one of Nov. 28 when the Russian delegation made new proposals to the Western powers on a test-ban treaty. In effect, these proposals call for a declaration that there would be no more nuclear weapons test explosions. The key provision was that each country would police its own pledge.

The Western powers promptly rejected this, saying it was a variety of "self-inspection" that would give no assurance at all that the Soviet Union would live up to its commitment.

State Department officials declared that the Western powers would never agree to major disarmament steps, beginning with a ban on testing, which were not safeguarded by an international inspection system.

One objective of the Russian maneuver in trying to keep the Geneva talks going may be to bring pressures on the United States to prevent President John F. Kennedy from deciding to go ahead with atmospheric tests.

Cold, Wet Weather Continues To Reign

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain and drizzle continued to soak wide areas of the nation today, turning the winter's snow accumulation to slush and swelling rivers with heavy runoff.

Drenching rains in north-central Indiana swelled streams and sent the Wabash River over its banks in Montezuma. Schools closed in Lebanon when a flash flood threatened 100 homes.

Roads were flooded near Lima, Ohio, soaked by two inches. Heavy runoff on the frozen ground created an ice jam on the Auglaize River. A school in Spencerville was flooded.

About 250 residents of Eastlake and Willoughby Hills, near Cleveland, were routed by the Chagrin River, which was flowing at up to nine feet above normal.

More than 100 barges broke loose from moorings on the Ohio River near Cairo, Ill., as the river rose two feet. They were swept downstream into the ice-choked Mississippi River, which has been closed to traffic by a huge ice jam since Jan. 12.

Thunderstorms brought heavy rain to parts of Mississippi and Alabama, including 1.50 inches at Columbus, Miss. The rain belt extended northeast across New York State into New England.

Rain and drizzle were reported in the Pacific Northwest and scattered light snow fell in Montana and North Dakota.

A cold front pushed southeastward dropping readings to below zero in North Dakota and Minnesota. It was -11 at International Falls, Minn., during the night. The front created a freezing line that extended from southern New Mexico to Lake Erie.

Temperatures in the Far West were mostly in the 40s, with a few 50s in Southern California. Mild readings were common in the southeastern third of the nation, ranging from the 50s in eastern Texas, the Ohio Valley and the Middle Atlantic area to the 70s in southern Florida.

Birth Control Pill For Men —If They're Non-Drinkers

CARMEL (AP) — A cheap oral contraceptive for men has been developed but men who drink can't use the drug, doctors said at a medical meeting yesterday.

The doctors told the Western Society for Chemical Research that as little as half a beer can produce a violent reaction and make a man deathly ill.

Dr. Donald J. Moore of the Pacific Northwest Research Foundation in Seattle said the drug, known as bis-dichloracetyl diamines can be made as cheaply as aspirin and must be taken every day to be effective for non-drinkers.

Goldwater Says Romney Is Contender

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater believes Detroit industrialist George Romney would make a strong GOP presidential candidate for 1964.

The Arizona senator, himself a possible White House contender, expressed his view yesterday at a news conference on the Cornell University campus.

Goldwater was asked if he still felt, as he had said a couple of years ago, that the man who would be a strong candidate for the presidency in 1964 had not yet been heard from.

EXPECTED

"I think you're beginning to hear from the man," he replied, and mentioned Romney, now president of American Motors.

Romney was expected to announce soon whether he will run for governor of Michigan this fall. A Republican victory in that state, with a heavy labor vote, would boom his standing nationally.

Goldwater also attacked President John F. Kennedy's proposed urban affairs department as "not needed."

"When the federal government gets directly into the operation of the cities, I will vote against it," he said.

NEGRO?

He said the president's intention of naming a Negro, housing administrator Robert Weaver, head of the department, if it is created, did not enter into his stand.

Asked if he were to run for president in 1964 would he stand on his record of being anti-welfare, Goldwater replied, "I'd have to stand on it." As to whether he could win votes against welfare planks in big cities, he said, "we might not take the big cities but let's go hunting where the ducks are."

Goldwater was asked to assess Kennedy's first year in office.

"I think it was a good year," he said. "I wish we could have afforded it."

VFW Speech Contest Winner To Be On TV

Kathleen Bodeen of San Rafael, last year's state champion in the Veterans of Foreign Wars "Voice of Democracy" contest, will appear on a KGO-TV television show tomorrow.

Miss Bodeen will be a special guest on Channel 7's "Golden Gate Story" starting at noon and featuring the state finals of this year's VFW speech competition.

Europeans Threaten New Strikes In Algeria Over Terror, Violence

ALGIERS (UPI) — European shopkeepers threatened new "strikes" today to protest downtown police barricades set up to curtail the daily violence in Algiers.

Terror bombings, shooting and lynchings took 18 more lives yesterday and resulted in 25 persons injured. The wave of attacks brought the unofficial casualty toll since the first of the year to 476 dead and 896 wounded throughout Algeria.

So far this year the number of Persons killed every day averages to slightly more than 18.

Police reacted to the mounting toll by throwing up a network of roadblocks in downtown Algiers and searching 1,000 persons an hour for plastic explosives and weapons. Both Moslems and Europeans were forced to submit to quick but efficient friskings.

The emergency security measures cut into business. A delegation of businessmen visited city authorities to complain, and Europeans shut down shops, cafes and movie houses in protest.

The businesses closed, opened, closed again and re-opened to back up the delegation.

Troops continued to patrol the uneasy area into the night.

Authorities have imposed a 9 p.m. curfew here and in Oran, Algeria's second largest city, a 7 p.m. curfew was ordered and armored cars, half-tracks and jeeps mounted with machine guns rolled through the streets.

Terrorism continued despite all precautions. Four members of the outlawed right-wing "secret army" broke into a hospital here to rescue one of their members who was wounded while crashing a roadblock.

Other terrorists invaded a Moslem school and shot a teacher to death before the eyes of his screaming pupils.

Five Moslems died in Blida when a carload of Europeans machinegunned a cafe. Eleven more were wounded.

In St. Aime, a European was shot and killed while walking his dog. A French army jeep was wrecked near Philippeville by a land mine which killed one paratrooper and wounded his sidekick.

Old Soldier Reaches 82 —M'Arthur

NEW YORK (AP) — General of the Army Douglas MacArthur reached his 82nd year yesterday—an age, he said, "when every new birthday is something of a triumph."

During the day, he accepted greetings from the cadets at the U.S. Military Academy and read birthday messages from well-wishers around the world.

He was the guest of honor at a birthday dinner in the Waldorf Towers.

The general said that of all the honors he had received, he "prized most highly" that of being a graduate of West Point.

Ban On Export Of U.S. TV Shows, Films Urged

NEW YORK (UPI)—A Protestant missionary urged the federal government last night to prohibit the export of U.S. movies and television shows because, he said, they "warp and debase the image of American life."

The Rev. Dr. Truman B. Douglas, executive vice president of the board for Homeland Ministries of the United Church of Christ, recently completed a world tour. He reported to the annual meeting of homeland ministries board:

"I have come to regard the misrepresentations of American life and purposes by the movies and television as a subtler and more disastrous form of treason than the activities of a hundred professional spies and saboteurs."

Dr. Douglas said American TV networks "have demonstrated their incompetence or unwillingness to make responsible use of 'the people's air.'" This, he said, followed "a very generous probationary period" during which the networks were urged to improve their product.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarty (D-Minn.), who addressed the same meeting, deplored what he called a lack of a "refined sense of right and wrong in American life."

Burglar Hits Home: $1,000

A "pillow case burglar" ransacked a Mill Valley home and stole about $1,000 in movie equipment, jewelry, clothes and money, owner Robert B. Richardson of 455 Sequoia Valley Drive, reported to the sheriff Thursday.

Sheriff's investigators said there was no sign of a forced entry.

Three bedrooms had been ransacked. Richardson's loss included cameras, movie projector, portable radio, clothing, about $30 in cash, and jewelry. A pillow slip, probably used to carry the loot, is missing from the master bedroom.

The thief also took a stereophonic phonograph and gold rings belonging to Robert R. Giani of Monterey, a house guest, and cameras and about $40 in cash belonging to Robert Cox, a tenant.

Acting Chief Named For Audits Division

Luciano Died As He Lived

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Charles Luciano died as he had lived, under the eyes of the law, and the ex-czar of the American underworld left authorities on two continents a legacy—mystery.

Shadowed to the very end, the 64-year-old Sicilian-born crime king dropped dead last night at Naples' Capodichino Air port under the watch of a narcotics agent.

In Washington, Henry Giordano, deputy commissioner of the U.S. Narcotics Bureau, indicated Luciano had faced imminent arrest in connection with a continuing investigation of a 150-million-dollar dope ring smashed in New York last year.

Italian authorities said they would continue their investigation of Luciano's links in connection with the dope ring.

Showdown Is Due On Test-Ban Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Britain are expected to tell Russia in blunt terms Monday that further separate negotiations on a nuclear test-ban treaty are useless because of the Soviet attitude on the critical inspection issue.

State Department officials said the record of Soviet maneuvers in recent weeks has made it plain that Moscow is opposed to a ban on nuclear weapons testing under controls. Russia is only interested now, they said, in trying to put the blame for the failure of the long negotiations on the United States and Britain.

Broad-scale negotiations on disarmament are scheduled to open at Geneva March 14 under U.N. auspices. The conference will be made up of 18 nations.

In Washington's view the prospects for any real progress toward ending the nuclear arms race are extremely dim.

But the Western powers intend to put fresh emphasis on the need for a nuclear test ban as a starting point.

Russia rejected yesterday a U.S.-British offer made earlier this month to merge the test-ban talks with the forthcoming disarmament negotiations. This was a sharp turnabout in the Soviet position. For months Kremlin leaders, including Premier Nikita Khrushchev, had declared that they should be merged.

The next nuclear test meeting at Geneva is scheduled Monday and officials said that presumably that would be the last session of the series, which began more than three years ago. They said the United States and Britain would formally state their position at that time.

The Soviet maneuver followed one of Nov. 28 when the Russian delegation made new proposals to the Western powers on a test-ban treaty. In effect, these proposals call for a declaration that there would be no more nuclear weapons test explosions. The key provision was that each country would police its own pledge.

The Western powers promptly rejected this, saying it was a variety of "self-inspection" that would give no assurance at all that the Soviet Union would live up to its commitment.

State Department officials declared that the Western powers would never agree to major disarmament steps, beginning with a ban on testing, which were not safeguarded by an international inspection system.

One objective of the Russian maneuver in trying to keep the Geneva talks going may be to bring pressures on the United States to prevent President John F. Kennedy from deciding to go ahead with atmospheric tests.

Burglar Hits Home In Marin: $1,000

A "pillowcase burglar" struck a Kent Woodlands home yesterday, hauling off more than $1,000 in cameras, field glasses and photographic equipment and an undetermined amount of jewelry.

According to Sheriff's deputies, someone entered the home of Kenneth M. Abernathy of 531 Woodland Road sometime between 7 a.m. and 8:30 p.m., ransacked drawers in the bedroom and den and apparently made off with the loot in a pillowcase removed from the bed.

Abernathy said he and his wife returned home last night to find their dresser drawers open and the jewelry and camera equipment missing. There was no sign of forced entry, deputies said.

Missing jewelry and incidentals included a pearl choker pin, two pearl scatter pins, two pearl shell pins, 12 to 15 sets of cufflinks and tie bars, three new wallets and four cigarette lighters, cameras, a projector, a transistor radio and field glasses were valued at $1,040. Also missing, on which no estimate was given, were two other cameras, a telephoto lens and a flash gun.

Abernathy told officers a complete list of the missing articles and their estimated value would be compiled today.

BECOMES PARTNER—William B. Mandel, 77 Bothin Road, Fairfax, has been admitted to general partnership with Reuben E. Price, certified public accountant of San Francisco. He has served 14 years with the firm which is being changed to Reuben E. Price and Co.

Two Airmen Alter Check —$11,800

Two staff sergeants at Hamilton Air Force Base, who apparently operated on the theory that money should be used on an "easy come, easy go" basis, were charged yesterday of altering a $118 check to read $11,800.

Secret Service agents arrested Alexander A. Isele and Robert Shorter, both 34, at the air base yesterday and arrainged the pair before the United States Commissioner in San Francisco.

According to Secret Service Agent Elmer Moore, the sergeants inflated Isele's $118 semi-monthly paycheck by adding two zeros, then went on a $10,000 spending spree. Moore testified the men bought cars, gifts for girl friends, and Christmas presents.

By the time the audit revealed the illegal pay raise, the $10,000 account opened up in a San Rafael bank had dwindled to almost nothing, the Secret Service agent said.

U.S. Commissioner Donald B. Constine set $2,500 bail for each suspect and continued the case until Thursday.

Marin County recently pledged $26,000 a year maintenance for a 50-year period.

If this amount is provided by creation of a zone covering only the directly affected areas, Fusselman estimated that it would put 3½ cents on the tax rate. Or it could amount to about a cent countywide.

"Originally this was a very minor concept, centering on flood-menaced areas around College Avenue," said Fusselman. "But gradually the whole idea changed and now the concept includes the area bringing about this condition.

"Any cost to the county should be steadily more than made up by increase in value of property. I feel sure this will now go through as part of an omnibus bill.

Board Decision Due On County Coroner

Decision is due by county supervisors Tuesday as to whether the presently independent office of county coroner should be consodilated with that of sheriff.

Discussion has been scheduled for 3 p. m. and this is the last chance to make any change due to legal requirements, according to an opinion by county counsel.

A report on practice in other counties will be submitted by Administrator Alan Bruce. Consolidation of the coroner job would be accompanied by a similar union of the present joint post of public administrator with some other office, probably that of district attorney.

Coroner Frank J. Keaton is on record as ready to accept a salary rather than a fee basis but opposed to any consolidation plan.

Although the formal agenda issued from the county clerk's office provides for hearings on school district boundary changes at 3 p. m. Monday, it is expected that no quorum will be present and that this will be taken up the next day in accordance with recent decision to resume one all-day hearing.

Meeting at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday, the supervisors have communications including one from the San Geronimo Valley Assn. requesting redistricting of the county supervisorial districts. Discussion of provision for senior citizens at the civic center is down for 11:30 a. m.

Meeting again at 1 p. m. the supervisors will take up Public Works Department and Planning Commission matters before discussing the coroner job. They also have several continued matters, among which action has been promised on the question of hiring an analyst to act as assistant to the administrator.

1962, or Friday, Feb. 2, 1962, depending on technical evaluation of space craft and launch vehicle serving requirements."

A weather advisory at 10 a.m. said:

"Although good weather still prevails in the recovery areas, a layer of clouds 7,000 feet high spread over central Florida during the night and early morning. There are some breaks in the clouds but officials felt this is not sufficient for adequate camera coverage of the Mercury Atlas vehicle in flight."

Technicians opened the capsule got Glenn unstrapped, and he finally emerged—wearing a broad grin—at 10:25 a.m., five hours, 13 minutes after he had entered the craft.

Glenn was to be taken down from the rocket and returned to his special "ready room" quarters in Hangar S about four miles from the launching pad.

There was no immediate comment from Glenn on the postponement. He had left Hangar S at 4:46 a.m. after a final physical examination and breakfast. He entered the capsule at 5:12 a.m. for a scheduled 7:30 launching.

Two minor problems delayed the launch past the scheduled time and while technicians were correcting one of them the clouds moved over the Cape and completely obscured what had been clear skies earlier.

Today's postponement was the fifth for Glenn's flight.

Arts Quartet On Tomorrow

The Marin Arts Quartet will open its 1962 season tomorrow at 3 p.m. at the Outdoor Art Clubhouse in Mill Valley.

Member of the quartet are Charles Meacham, first violin; Everett O'Bannon, second violin; Elizabeth Bell, viola, and Jean Mattos Maguire, cello. All except Mrs. Bell are members of the San Francisco Symphony and reside in Marin County.

An unusual number to be included in the program is Quartet No. 6, a composition from the early colonial period of America, which is on loan to the quartet from the Library of Congress. Other numbers are Hindemuth's String Quartet, Opus No. 10, and Verdi's String Quartet in E Minor.

Those who do not have season tickets for theis concert and for the ones on March 11 and May 20 may obtain them, or a single admission, at the door.

Crack Found In Bridge No Mystery

A $10,000 crack found in a concrete girder of Richmond-San Rafael Bridge is not a mystery—a runaway barge did the damage about two months ago.

This explanation came today from Robert Bottini of 45 Bellvue Avenue, San Rafael, who said he saw the floating barge just miss the Marin Rod and Gun Club pier by about 200 feet and head for the bridge. Bottini said he called the sheriff's office at the time, and the United States Coast Guard was notified.

Bottini recalls that the barge was towed back to its mooring at McNear's Point.

Bridge engineers announced yesterday that one westbound lane of the span would be closed during repair, which is estimated to take four months.

American iron smelters burn nearly 30 million tons of limestone a year as fluxstone. It acts as a chemical sponge to absorb impurities and form an easily removable slag.

Valley Baptist Dedicates Its New Addition

Dr. Warren Conrad, director of the Conservative Baptists in Northern California, officiated last week at dedication services for the just completed addition to the Valley Baptist Church of San Rafael.

"The period following the dedication of a church is a most dangerous time for any congregation," said Dr. Conrad. "Many times we forget that the finishing of the building is only the preparation for the real work, the further extension of God's work, and not the finishing of a job well done."

The new addition is the second phase of the church's three step building program. It has increased the church's seating capacity to 125 persons, added a nursery for pre-school children while their parents attend worship service and an auditorium for young people's activities, and enabled the church to increase its potential Sunday School enrollment to 150 students.

"We established our parish just four years ago with five charter members," Pastor Stanley Walsh reminded his congregation during the ceremonies. "If the parish continues to grow at its present rate, the next four years will find the congregation ready to build the final sanctuary."

Three Marin Churches To Observe Youth Day

Three Marin County churches have announced they will hold special services in observance of Youth Sunday tomorrow, the first day of National Youth Week.

The churches are the First Presbyterian Church of Marin City, the First Presbyterian Church of San Anselmo and the Novato Community Methodist Church.

The youth of the Marin City parish will conduct the 11 a.m. worship service tomorrow, announced Donald Register, student supply pastor.

Dr. Henry Kuizenga, pastor of the San Anselmo church, will preach a sermon entitled "The Decision Makers." Participating in the 9 a.m. service will be Prudence Parker and Libby Kuizenga, greeting; Shirley Glandon, Scripture reading; Jeff Hedin, prayer; Keith Truslov, Steve Daniels, Tom Burch, Robert Young, Mike Miller, and Phil Gilbert.

In the 11 a.m. service, Sara Keys and Marilyn Murray, greeting; Pam Parker, Scripture reading; Bruce Come, prayer, and Don Parrott, Ed Keys, Tim Murphy, Tinsley Stetson, Don Hueg and Steve Daniels, ushering.

The Methodist Campus Minister at the University of California and director of the Wesley Foundation will be guest speaker at the Novato church.

Rev. William D. Porter, a graduate of the university, will speak to the youth groups at 6:30, and at 7:30 p.m. he will speak to the general congregation.

Rev. Porter spent three years in Japan as a missionary for the Methodist Church at Kwansei Gakuin University. Returning to Berkeley, he did his theological study at Pacific School of Religion in 1954.

Rev. Porter took a group of 15 University of California students to Japan for a summer service project last year.

Seminarian To Preach At St. Paul's Church

A seminarian from the Church Divinity School of the Pacific, Berkeley, will preach tomorrow at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael.

The guest, Paul A. Perrine Jr., of Tampa, Fla., is a senior at the seminary. He was invited by the local parish so that the congregation can hear first-hand of the work being done at the West Coast Seminary, said Rev. John Riley, pastor.

Perrine will preach at both the 9 and 11 a.m. services.

Beeley, Auterson Are New Bethel Deacons

Lawrence Beeley and Frank Autersen were elected to the Deacon's Board at the annual business meeting of the Bethel Baptist Church in Novato last week.

The 1962 budget was unanimously adopted with a 10 per cent increase over last year's.

Chairman of the board of deacons Frank Gast's proposal that the church sponsor a Boy Scout Troop was adopted. Harry Horn and Sherrill Pyles were appointed with Gast to head the work.

MILL VALLEY ASSEMBLY WILL HOLD CRUSADE

A missionary crusade will be held by the Southern Marin Assembly of God in Mill Valley Feb. 2, 3 and 4, announced Rev. James C. Walton, pastor.

Opening rally will be next Friday, 7:30 p.m., at the Assembly of God Church, 519 D Street, San Rafael, with guest speakers Floyd Thomas, Ruth Gerhart, Gretchen Lehman and George Effman.

Other services will be at the Mill Valley church, East Blithedale and Sycamore Avenues. Ruth Gerhart will speak about present missions abroad and show pictures of her tour through the Holy Land and the Orient at 7:30 p.m. next Saturday. Feb. 4 at 11 a.m. Effman, director of American Indian Fellowship, will tell of missions at home among American Indians.

Gretchen Lehman, a student of Bethany Bible College, spent most of her life in Africa where her parents were missionaries. She will speak Feb. 4 at 7 p.m.

J. Hudson Ballard Continues Series

Dr. J. Hudson Ballard, formerly head of the department of Pastoral Psychology at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, will present the second in a series of lectures on "Psychology and Better Living" at the Redwoods Presbyterian Church in Larkspur tomorrow.

Dr. Ballard will also preach at the 11 a.m. worship service on "God Curing Discouragement." His lectures are at 8 o'clock tomorrow through Thursday.

Christian Science

Today's demand for progress based on a true comprehension of God's nearness and all-power will be stressed tomorrow at Christian Science church services in Marin.

Valley Baptist Dedicates Its New Addition

Dr. Warren Conrad, director of the Conservative Baptists in Northern California, officiated last week at dedication services for the just completed addition to the Valley Baptist Church of San Rafael.

"The period following the dedication of a church is a most dangerous time for any congregation," said Dr. Conrad. "Many times we forget that the finishing of the building is only the preparation for the real work, the further extension of God's work, and not the finishing of a job well done."

The new addition is the second phase of the church's three step building program. It has increased the church's seating capacity to 125 persons, added a nursery for pre-school children while their parents attend worship service and an auditorium for young people's activities, and enabled the church to increase its potential Sunday School enrollment to 150 students.

"We established our parish just four years ago with five charter members," Pastor Stanley Walsh reminded his congregation during the ceremonies. "If the parish continues to grow at its present rate, the next four years will find the congregation ready to build the final sanctuary."

Oneness Of Universe, Mankind Discussed By Sculptor Bufano

By MAYBELLE SPECKMAN

Sculptor Beniamino Bufano drew one of the largest audiences of members and guests Thursday afternoon ever present for a program of Mill Valley's Outdoor Art Club, but there was great disappointment that he dealt with his own work for only a few minutes at the end of his speech.

The speaker started with a discussion of his personal philosophy centered around the oneness of the universe and mankind.

Illustrating his talk with colored slides, principally of pre-historic cave paintings, Bufano explained that they had never been surpassed as art. He then showed in blackboard drawings how architecture had progressed from cave dwellings with each civilization adding something in height up to the modern skyscraper.

Among the points he made about his own philosophy of art were these:

Motivation for self expression in art should be as spontaneous as the song of a bird, completely without regard to profit or intention to exhibit.

The greatest thing in life is to make things simple, but in order to be simple we must be erudite. It is not what we put on a work of art—it's what we leave off that is important.

There is just color—not colors, no matter how many — when they are used properly together.

Design is a matter of simple handling of empty and full space, not according to the complicated rules set up by critics.

One of the troubles with the modern movement is that there are so many "Lousy craftsmen."

Following the program tea was served by Mrs. George R. Williams, assisted by Mesdames Robert Andresen, Leonard Bjorklund, John Coutlee, Samuel Seifert, Joseph Sheeks and Earl Reinke.

Pouring were Mesdames F. J. Connelly, DeWitt Clark, Samuel Bagshaw and Fred Drexler.

Decorations were done by Mrs. Fred Voights, assisted by Mrs. Keith McLellan.

Speaker of the day will be Mary Gordon from TWA who will demonstrate the ease of packing for a two to six week trip anywhere in the world with under 40 pounds of luggage. Miss Gordon is a world traveler with more than a million air miles to her credit and has visited Europe, Asia and Africa. She will emphasize basic wardrobes and the subtle use of accessories to make a woman feel at home whether sipping wine in a sidewalk cafe or attending an Ambassador's reception.

The luncheon starts at 1 p.m.

Mrs. Richard Bradley is chairman for the day.

College Cagers Gain Momentum

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

College basketball begins to pick up momentum again tonight following the midseason slowdown for exams.

Now the conference title contenders and the aspiring independent powers start the big push toward the big goals—37 berths in two major postseason tournaments, the NCAA and the National Invitation.

It's not going too far out on a limb to say Ohio state is almost a sure-shot bet to repeat as Big Ten champion, and that league's entry in the NCAA. But otherwise, conference races are pretty much muddled.

Tonight's schedule is relatively light for a Saturday, but there still are a dozen or so key games involving conference contenders and leading independents.

Kansas State's Wildcats, 13-2 and ranked fourth nationally, could take over as Big Eight leader—with an assist from Oklahoma State's Aggies. K-State is at Iowa State and the Aggies play at Colorado, upset winner over Kansas State earlier this month and current Big Eight pacesetter at 3-0. The Wildcats are 3-1.

Ninth-ranked Bradley, tops in the Missouri Valley but closely pressed by Cincinnati and Wichita, will try to win tonight with All-America Chet Walker, out of action temporarily with a kidney disorder.

Last night, Utah State raced to an easy 88-69 conquest of Brigham Young and Colorado State took Wyoming 56-50 in a pair of Skyline Conference games.

In some of the other major games, Loyola of New Orleans blasted Dartmouth 74-54 in Hanover, N.H.; Rice visited Trinity (Tex.) and escaped with a 79-77 squeaker; Seton Hall outscored Scranton (Pa.) 120-100 at South Orange, N.J.; Boston College took Pitt 108-94 on the Eagles home court; Oregon clipped Seattle 71-65 and Baldwin-Wallace stopped Wittenberg's 40-game Ohio Conference winning string 36-33 at Cleveland.

'Vultures' Aim For Gene In Harding Park Golf Test

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The vultures, as tournament-wise Gene Littler jokingly called his fellow pros, were five strokes or more back of the U.S. Open champion going into the third round of the $50,000 San Francisco Open today, but Gene found no cause for complacency.

"I've got to keep charging those greens for birdies and pars or those vultures behind will catch me," Littler said after blazing around Harding Park in a three-under-par 68 for a two-round total of 133—nine strokes under par.

Thanks to a sizzling hot putter, Littler had been playing the greens like he owned them while most of the other pros were losing strokes on the tricky, erratic putting surfaces.

Littler, always noted for his fine putting, has been helped by superb approach shots.

Five strokes back at 138 are the veteran Texas star, Bill Maxwell, young Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif., and Tommy Jacobs of Bermuda Dunes, Calif., winner of the recent San Diego Open.

Billy gave the cheering crowd a thrill when, for the second straight day, he knocked in a wedge shot for an eagle from 100 feet out Friday. Thursday he eagled from 75 yards out.

Bunched a stroke farther back at 139 were Eric Monti, Don Fairfield, Billy Casper, Bob Harris, Tommy Aaron and Bob Rosburg.

Lanky George Archer of San Francisco, who plays Harding Park as his home course, was the only amateur anywhere near the front runners. He turned in a par 71 for a respectable one under 141 for his two rounds.

Two days of sunny, dry weather have turned the layout into a fast track and, although it may be partly overcast today, the weatherman figured there would be no rain—at least not before Sunday.

The field was cut to 90 pros and ties last night, along with 10 amateurs. Pros with two round scores of 148 or better stayed in contention.

Mama's Mink No Joke, It's Name Of A Boat

By OSCAR FRALEY

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—There's an old line about "what's in a name?" And when it comes to boats there is only one answer.

Plenty.

There is a craft, as example, sailing the waters in and around this city billed as the "Venice of America," which bears on its butt end the gilded legend, "Mama's Mink."

That's no joke, son.

"There goes my mink," said the lady of the house the first time she laid distressed eyes on the family's expensive new acquisition.

She wasn't kidding, either. And it was small consolation that the boat at least had earned an unusual name.

Indicating, quite naturally, that owning your own boat can become an expensive proposition .Which is reflected in a great many other names of the craft skipping along these waterways.

There is one titled simply "Sixteen-Five." Which is exactly what it cost, "plus a few extras here and there, of course."

Another fellow in the same boat, financially, that is, had to have a new rig. What with one thing and another, he called it "Second Mortgage." Why second?

"Because," he said, "my first boat was called 'First Mortgage,' and times haven't changed a bit."

Then there's the fellow whose sleek, trim craft is titled "Dollars More." The answer is easy to understand.

"It cost, and keeps costing, dollars more than I expected."

The bachelor clan has a grand time coming up with fitting, and hopeful, names for its boats. Say like "Dina Might," and "Aquaholic" and even "Aqua-Veet." Then there's one called "Sea Duce," and you can figure that out for yourself.

The most aptly-named one of all probably is the craft called "Phfft." It was leading the Miami endurance race with only 25 minutes to go when it did just that. Then there's "Caduceus Wild," which belongs to Dick Sherman of Trenton, Mich. He's a doctor and, it seems, quite a poker player.

Bill Brower of Fort Lauderdale owns a fishing boat titled "Pushwave III." He's a former hair stylist who invented a "Pushwave" permanent wave process and chucked the whole hair-do business for a life on the unpermanent waves.

You can believe it or not, but Joe Maybrown of Long Beach, N.Y., gets so much noise out of his racing craft that he calls, it, now get this, "Das Fireschpittin Loudinboomer."

One fellow named Harris has a boat called "Sirrah."

"It's merely Harris spelled backwards," he grinned. "My wife picked it out and wasn't bothered at all that it's an ancient form of address implying inferiority."

Then there's "Ma's Rival."

"Even so," observed a lonely lady sitting on a pier, "it's better than being a golf widow. This way she gets a chance to go along once in a while."

One of the most clever boat handles around these precincts is a dandy little boat named "Mitoiyat." But the favorite in this corner is a big craft named "Tender."

Dancing along in back of it on a tow line is a tiny tender. It, too, has a name neatly painted on its stern.

"Tender Behind."

Washington led 35-26 at the half and quickly grabbed a 12-point lead. Stanford never shaved the margin below five.

O'Neill was stricken with a heart attack at his home last Sunday.

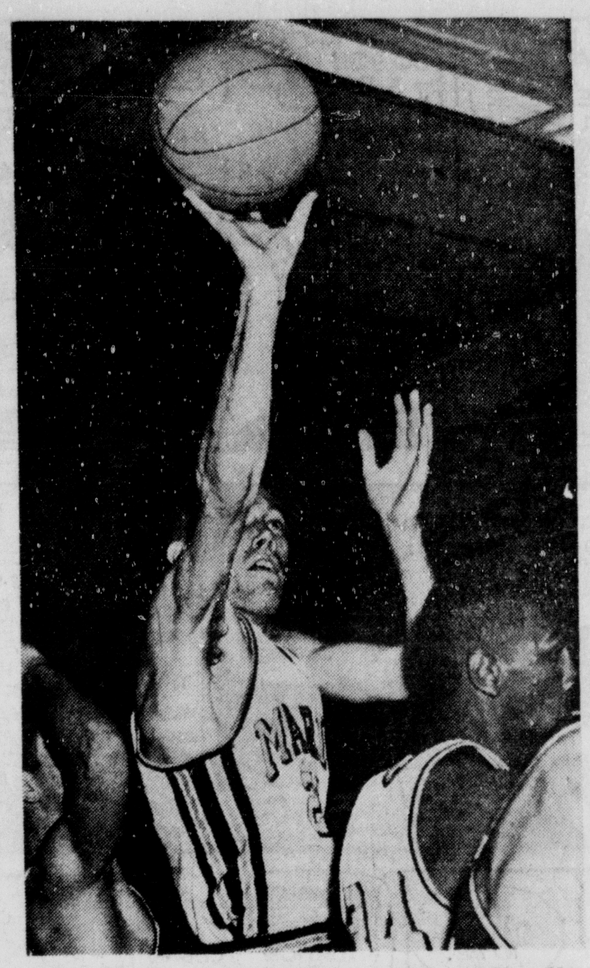
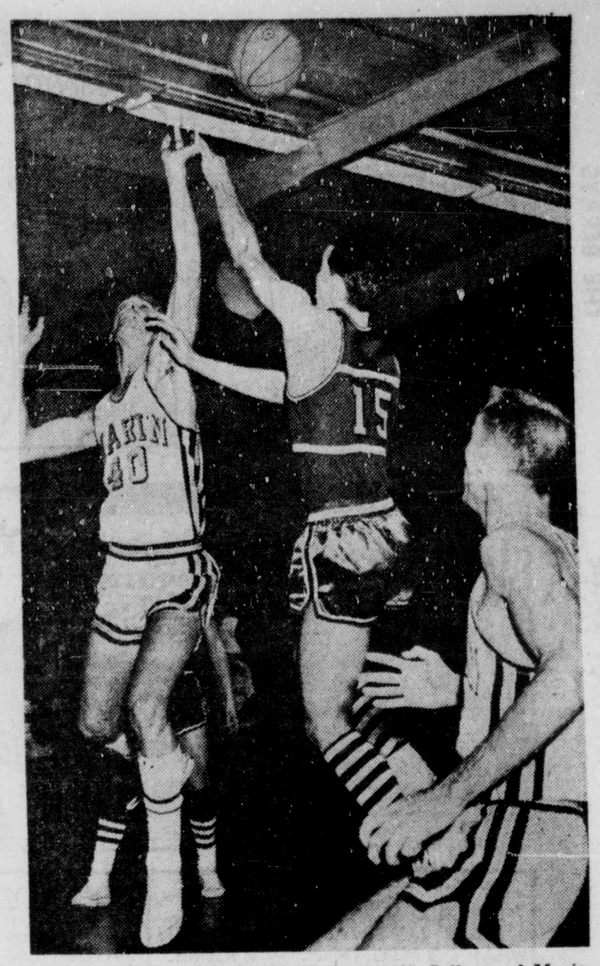
COLLEGE BALL HOGS — Lynn Livie, left and Randy Petrini, right, of the College of Marin Tars give Jim Cramer (34) of Sierra College a going over in search of the basketball which the Tars controlled most of last night's game. The Tars swamped Sierra at Terra Linda High, 81-62. Tonight, Marin plays at Napa College, 8 p.m. (Jim Kean photo)



MARIN PUSH — College of Marin 6-2 forward Dave Neumann drops in a one-hand push shot against Sierra College. Neumann tallied 12 points in the game. This was one of his four field goals. Left is Tar Jim Mitchell.



AFTER REBOUND — Bill Wallace (40) College of Marin front line man, goes for a rebound off the Sierra College backboard. Wallace stole the ball eight times from the boards last night. Jack Prock (15) is Sierra forward. Marin player in foreground is unidentified.

Tars Take Sierra; Face Napa Tonight

The College of Marin Tars basketball squad tonight will battle strong Napa Junior College as guests at 8 p.m. with hopes of adding another win to their Golden Valley Conference count of 3-1.

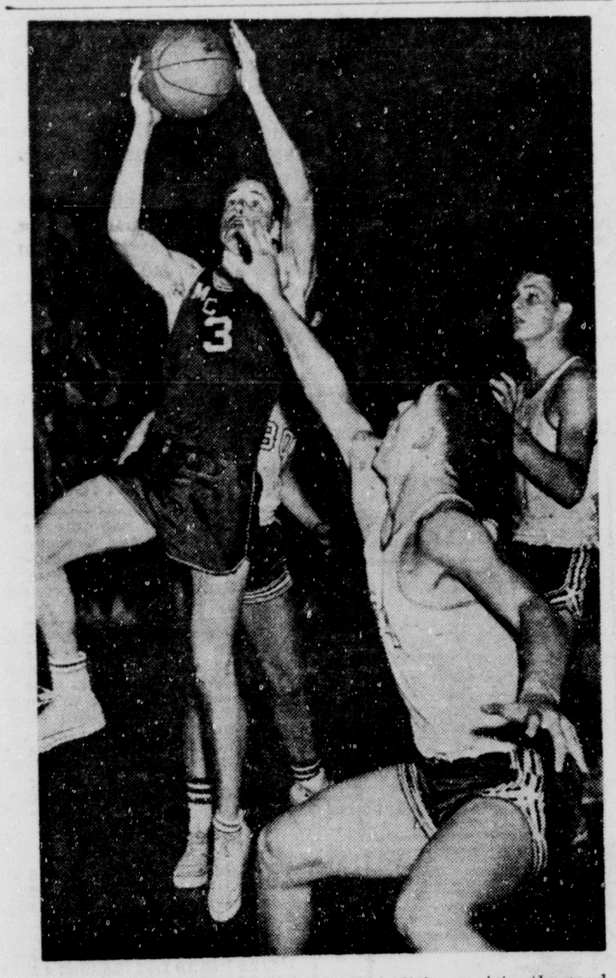
The additional win digit was easily gained last night as the Tars swamped Sierra College at the Terra Linda High gymnasium before some 400 fans, 81-62. Leading point gainer of the game was Tar hot-shot Lynn Livie who tallied 18.

Cal Riemcke's Marin athletes became weary of the slow controlled game Sierra was playing for about the first 10 minutes of action, so at that point Riemcke ordered a full-court defensive press as the scoreboard count read 15-15. The strategy broke the contest open and at the half it was 35-25 for Marin.

Even though everybody on the Tar squad played and 12 of them scored, Marin hit only 27 per cent of its shots, an unsatisfying statistic to both the players and coaches.

"We will have to do better than that to win tonight," said Riemcke, who added however that "we don't worry so much about shooting as we do about our defensive work." Last night it was Marin's defensive work that did the trick. The Tar front line, Bill Wallace, Jim Mitchell, Dave Neumann and Randy Petrini, controlled the backboards so well that Marin shooters were getting three and sometimes four chances to try again at missed shots. The Tars grabbed 32 rebounds to Sierra's six.

Livie scored his counts on six field goals and six free-throws, Neumann hit for 12 points on four FGs and four charities , and Petrini scored his 10 on four field goals and two charities. Other scorers for Marin were Steve Bryant, 4; Mitchell, 9; Mike Kavanagh, 3; Ernie Bray, 6; Charles Bullock, 7; Bob Melbern, 2; Jim Wylie, 2; and Bob Sparrow, 2.



NEST OF BULLDOGS — Marin Catholic's consistently good player John Enos grabs a rebound from a nest of four top San Rafael Bulldogs. Behind Enos is Rod Monti (30), center four foreground Rich Ahern, and right Jack Soveriegn.

KEY PLAYERS — Jerry Smith (13) of Marin Catholic and Jack Soveriegn of San Rafael vie for ball. Smith scored the next highest number of points for his team with nine. Soveriegn was the outstanding player of the contest. He scored the game high of 12 points and stole more rebounds than anybody else.

SAN RAFAEL MAKES IT 5 STRAIGHT

San Rafael High's unsung cager Jack Soveriegn put another Marin County Athletic League basketball victory into that school's fan's laps last night.

By smashing threatening Marin Catholic High, 50-40, the Bulldogs won their fifth straight league action, jumped in front of the loop standings by two whole games, and stayed undefeated. And to add some salt to the Catholics' wound, the Bulldogs forced Marin into a tie with Redwood for runner-up in the standings. San Rafael's record of wins and losses is 5-0, the other two schools' 3-2.

At the end of the first period it was 13-10 in favor of San Rafael, and even at the half, the Bulldogs were ahead by only six counts. But in the second half San Rafael stretched out the lead and, in the words of Bulldog manager Bill Nelson, "forced Marin, by a tight zone defense, to shoot from the perimeter" and rarely allowed them to fire from within the San Rafael key. Marin target men, Jerry Smith, Ron O'Connell, and John Enos were not up to shooting long lobes last night. It showed in the hit percentile. For San Rafael it was 43 per cent, Marin, 22 per cent.

Soveriegn was the standout player of the contest. Not only did he stack a game high of 12 points, but he also stole some 13 rebounds from the frustrated Wildcats who had hoped last night to tie San Rafael for the lead. The Cats were considered the strongest team in such an effort. But now it may be Redwood's turn to step into the ring.

The shooting of the usual stars was held in abeyance last night. Wildcat Smith was allowed nine counts, Enos Six, and only O'Connell got in the double figures with 10. For San Rafael Bruce MacPhail and Rich Robertson who because of fouls saw a lot of bench time tallied lower than usual. Bret Tovani of San Rafael was the next best scorer of the game with 11 points.

In scoring at the charity mark, Marin was superior with 16 to San Rafael's 14. But San Rafael tallied 17 field goals to Marin's 12.

Winning coach Mike Diaz who himself is a big gunner in the San Rafael Recreation Department adult league for Perry's Delicatessen, described the win as a "terrific team effort . . . we showed balanced scoring."

The Wildcats won the B game, 40-38, and the Bulldogs took the Jay Vee contest, 31-23.

VARSITY SCORERS

SAN RAFAEL — Soveriegn 5-2-12, Monti 2-4-8, Ahern 1-0-4, MacPhail 1-0-2, Robertson 2-3-7, Haney 2-2-6, Palmeteer 2-0-2, Tovani 4-3-11.

MARIN CATHOLIC — Williams 2-1-5, Enos 3-0-6, Kruger 0-2-2, Smith 2-5-9, O'Connell 4-2-10, Makinson 1-6-8.

Drake Pirates Win; Now Have Hornet Cellar Mates

The Sir Francis Drake Pirates basketball team got a cellmate last night—rather a cellar mate.

The Pirates grabbed their first league win of the season by downing Novato High 47-29 in the San Anselmo gymnasium. The victory gave both squads 1-4 won-loss records and leaves them holding hands in the bottom rung of the Marin County Athletic League standings with another round of play ahead.

The Hub people—led by high shooting Brad Busch—wanted last night's pie and they didn't let the North Marinites have a piece all evening. The first period score was 8-4, Drake, the halftime count, 12-9 Drake and the Pirates more than doubled Novato's six-point spree in the third period.

It was that third quarter belting that really knocked the legs out from under Novato because the Hornets had only been seven points under at halftime. Pirate coach Carl Brown noted that it was usually his squad that had "third quarter troubles." Everyone on the Pirates squad played well, said the coach.

Drake threw a regular man-to-man defense against Novato. The Hornets played it four-man zone and put their captain, Joe Colfer in orbit against Busch. But it was Busch who put the ball in orbit to the roar of 18 points, game's high. Colfer not only had to hold down a tough defensive assignment, but he held up Novato's offensive game—as he has done many times this season—by scoring the team high of 13 points. Next best gunner for Novato was Nick Willard with seven points. Both athletes performed well in both departments.

Drake's Mark Boero showed himself again last night to be one of the county's most competitive floor men. And Bruce Ketron, who lately has been giving the Pirates some much needed shooting depth, last night tallied seven for them.

The Drake Bs, with the help of Lorry Gaiassi's 14 counts, out ran Novato 27-20. The Pirates Jay Vees also came up with a win. They pushed over Terra Linda 35-19. But the San Anselmo school failed to make it a clean sweep last night as the Terra Linda Frosh downed the Pirates 21-13. High point man was Tim Murphy of Drake, with 10.

Today is Saturday, Jan. 27, the 27th day of the year with 338 to follow in 1962.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

There are no morning or evening stars.

On this day in history:

In 1832, the creator of the immortal "Alice in Wonderland," Lewis Carroll, was born.

In 1880, a patent for an electric incandescent lamp was granted to Thomas Edison of Menlo Park N.J.

In 1888, the National Geographic Society was founded in Washington, D.C.

In 1943, the United States Eighth Air Force staged the first all-American air raid on Germany in broad daylight.

A thought for today: American essayist and poet Ralph Waldo Emerson once said: "A man is a bundle of relations, a knot of roots, whose flower and fruitage is the world."

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Jan. 27, the 27th day of the year with 338 to follow in 1962.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

There are no morning or evening stars.

On this day in history:

In 1832, the creator of the immortal "Alice in Wonderland," Lewis Carroll, was born.

In 1880, a patent for an electric incandescent lamp was granted to Thomas Edison of Menlo Park N.J.

In 1888, the National Geographic Society was founded in Washington, D.C.

In 1943, the United States Eighth Air Force staged the first all-American air raid on Germany in broad daylight.

A thought for today: American essayist and poet Ralph Waldo Emerson once said: "A man is a bundle of relations, a knot of roots, whose flower and fruitage is the world."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Light-face type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Experts Defy Law Of Physics: Must Be In 2 Places At Once

A good bridge player must defy the law of physics that you can't be in two places at the same time. To be a good declarer you must often put yourself in a defender's place.

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	All Pass

Opening lead — ♡ 5

West opened the five of hearts, and South just played a low trump from dummy without trying to be in two places at once.

East won with the queen and returned a trump to the ace. A third round of trumps cleared the suit out of dummy.

Now South had only nine tricks: three trumps, four clubs and two other aces. He didn't have to lose a spade trick, but two diamonds and two trumps were enough to get him in the minus column.

EXPERT WITNESS: Take the stand as an expert witness. As the opening leader, how often have you opened a trump from Q-x-x? Almost never.

Next question. How often have you opened a low trump from A-x-x? Quite often.

The prosecution rests. The witness may step down.

The point is that South should read the opening lead by putting himself in West's place. West couldn't be leading a trump from Q-x-x but might be leading from A-x-x.

Upon noting this simple fact, South should put up the king of hearts from the dummy at the first trick. Then he cashes the ace of diamonds and returns a diamond.

The defenders cannot get the trumps out of the dummy (except at the cost of a trump tick), and South gets his chance to ruff a diamond in dummy. Then he can run the clubs, getting rid of a spade or his last diamond. The opponents get only three tricks.

DAILY QUESTION: Partner opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 point), and the next player passes. You hold:

♠ K 8 4
♥ A 8 5
♦ Q 9 6 4
♣ 8 5 3

What do you say?

Answer: Bid 2 NT. Partner will go on to game unless he has a bare 16 points, in which case a game contract is no bargain. You would jump to 3 NT if you had a fifth diamond or a couple of tens to bolster up your bare nine points.

Nazareth House Dedication Set Feb. 18

The Nazereth House for the Aging at 245 Nova Albion Way in Terra Linda will be formally dedicated on Feb. 18 at 3 p. m., it was announced today.

The million-dollar building which will be the home of about 100 elderly persons, was built and financed by the Congregation of the Sisters of Nazereth which operates 64 homes for the elderly throughout the world.

Louis G. Freitas, honorary chairman, and Mrs. Thomas J. Mellon, general chairman of the dedication, announced that Bishop Hugh A. Donohoe, auxiliary Bishop of San Francisco and administrator of the Archdiocese of San Francisco, will officiate at the outdoor ceremony.

State Aide Calls For Marin Parks

Administrator William E. Warne of the Resources Agency of California today called for development of Angel Island and the Sausalito headlands at Forts Baker and Cronkhite as a state park.

Speaking in Oakland before the third annual University of California conference on regional recreation and open space, Warne said that cooperative recreational developments, undertaken by cities, counties, park districts and regional agencies" could dot the bayshore with sandy beaches and green shore areas."

Noting that the population of the Bay Area is expected to double within 30 years, Warne said, "This means that in a single generation we will need twice as many homes, schools and transportation facilities.

"It also means that we must move agressively and with vision to meet a public demand for recreational facilities."

sion!" screamed Smith and the other defense attorneys.

Prosecutor Bales jumped up and demanded that the judge cite the defense for contempt.

By this time, everybody was jumping up and shouting at the same time. Above the din rose Duncan's voice: "I have offer of proof to show that this man (Oropeza) has in his possession certain nude photographs, and if this evidence is destroyed, I'll appeal to the highest court!"

Judge Brusatori shot a finger of caution at Duncan, warning him to put on "no more displays like this." "I think the court is due an apology."

"I apologize for possibly raising my voice," Duncan conceded. He explained he fears any photographs Oropeza may have might be destroyed. "We consider this the most vital information we have," said Duncan.

The defense is apparently trying to produce a nude or semi-nude picture of Mrs. Kellam in an effort to discredit the prosecution's first witness.

After adjournment, Judge Brusatori called all attorneys into chambers, where the defense attorneys asked the judge to call the warden to prevent destruction of any photographs Oropeza may have.

Judge Brusatori asked prosecutor Bales to phone the warden. As Bales spokes with Warden Fred R. Dickson, explaining what the judge had said about the convict's constitutional rights, Duncan yelled: "Get off the phone!"

Judge Brusatori himself took over the telephone and got the warden's assurance that photographs and papers in Oropeza's possession would be preserved.

Earlier in the afternoon, Mrs. Kellam had testified she had taken "semi-clothed" pictures of herself into the prison but she insisted they were not "nude" photographs.

All day yesterday, four defense attorneys took turns quizzing Mrs. Kellam, delving into her background.

Mrs. Kellam described how she injected heroin into herself with a home-made hypodermic needle. She said she took heroin from about Oct. 28 until Nov. 13 last year. She said she is the mother of four, that her husband is in San Quentin for narcotics violation, and that she took heroin-buying trips to Mrs. Pauline Herrera's home in Los Angeles.

Accused of conspiracy to smuggle dope into San Quentin are Mrs. Herrera, 31; Mrs. Marie Frances Hall, 47; prison inmate Benjamin Gonzalez, 28, Mrs. Herrera's brother; and inmate Richard Rodrequez, 34. All four have different attorneys representing them.

wide planning and the creation of a state planning department.

The committee, which started deliberations at noon yesterday, was still in session approaching 4 a.m. today. Their determinations will be presented to the delegates tonight or possibly tomorrow morning.

Also scheduled tonight is presentation of the policy statements on foreign affairs, human rights and television which were prepared by the five regional issues conferences.

This afternoon, Nancy Strawbridge of Belvedere will take the rostrum to nominate for endorsement Paul Leake of Woodland for re-election as member of the state Board of Equalization from the third equalization district, which includes Marin. Leake was expected to be endorsed without opposition.

This afternoon too, the delegates were to hear U.S. Sen. Clair Engle and Ted Sorenson, special assistant to President Kennedy. Tomorrow morning, the featured speaker will be Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota.

In accepting the endorsement, Governor Brown pictured Richard M. Nixon "running around like Chicken Little in the well known children's classic, shouting the sky is falling."

He lashed Nixon again for accepting the support of the "John Birch Society and its extremist allies" and pledged that "I want no support from either extreme. I will not appear on platforms with communists or their sympathizers —or with the lunatic right." And he challenged Nixon to join in the fight against "political primitives."

To the cheering crowd, Brown called the CDC "the strongest and most influential grass roots political organization in America" and accepted Nixon's suggestion that they engage in "a bare-knuckle scrap."

Lt. Gov. Glenn M. Anderson accepted the endorsement with "confidence" in re-election of both Governor Brown and himself, "if we tell the people the truth about our record, and make sure the people understand."

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Experts Defy Law Of Physics: Must Be In 2 Places At Once

A good bridge player must defy the law of physics that you can't be in two places at the same time. To be a good declarer you must often put yourself in a defender's place.

♣ A Q

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	All Pass

Opening lead — ♡ 5

West opened the five of hearts, and South just played a low trump from dummy without trying to be in two places at once.

East won with the queen and returned a trump to the ace. A third round of trumps cleared the suit out of dummy.

Now South had only nine tricks: three trumps, four clubs and two other aces. He didn't have to lose a spade trick, but two diamonds and two trumps were enough to get him in the minus column.

EXPERT WITNESS: Take the stand as an expert witness. As the opening leader, how often have you opened a trump from Q-x-x? Almost never.

Next question. How often have you opened a low trump from A-x-x? Quite often.

The prosecution rests. The witness may step down.

The point is that South should read the opening lead by putting himself in West's place. West couldn't be leading a trump from Q-x-x but might be leading from A-x-x.

Upon noting this simple fact, South should put up the king of hearts from the dummy at the first trick. Then he cashes the ace of diamonds and returns a diamond.

The defenders cannot get the trumps out of the dummy (except at the cost of a trump tick), and South gets his chance to ruff a diamond in dummy. Then he can run the clubs, getting rid of a spade or his last diamond. The opponents get only three tricks.

DAILY QUESTION: Partner opens with 1 NT (16 to 18 point), and the next player passes. You hold:

♠ K 8 4
♥ A 8 5
♦ Q 9 6 4
♣ 8 5 3

What do you say?

Answer: Bid 2 NT. Partner will go on to game unless he has a bare 16 points, in which case a game contract is no bargain. You would jump to 3 NT if you had a fifth diamond or a couple of tens to bolster up your bare nine points.

Nazareth House Dedication Set Feb. 18

The Nazereth House for the Aging at 245 Nova Albion Way in Terra Linda will be formally dedicated on Feb. 18 at 3 p. m., it was announced today.

The million-dollar building which will be the home of about 100 elderly persons, was built and financed by the Congregation of the Sisters of Nazereth which operates 64 homes for the elderly throughout the world.

Louis G. Freitas, honorary chairman, and Mrs. Thomas J. Mellon, general chairman of the dedication, announced that Bishop Hugh A. Donohoe, auxiliary Bishop of San Francisco and administrator of the Archdiocese of San Francisco, will officiate at the outdoor ceremony.

State Aide Calls For Marin Parks

Administrator William E. Warne of the Resources Agency of California today called for development of Angel Island and the Sausalito headlands at Forts Baker and Cronkhite as a state park.

Speaking in Oakland before the third annual University of California conference on regional recreation and open space, Warne said that cooperative recreational developments, undertaken by cities, counties, park districts and regional agencies" could dot the bayshore with sandy beaches and green shore areas."

Noting that the population of the Bay Area is expected to double within 30 years, Warne said, "This means that in a single generation we will need twice as many homes, schools and transportation facilities.

"It also means that we must move agressively and with vision to meet a public demand for recreational facilities."

sion!" screamed Smith and the other defense attorneys.

Prosecutor Bales jumped up and demanded that the judge cite the defense for contempt.

By this time, everybody was jumping up and shouting at the same time. Above the din rose Duncan's voice: "I have offer of proof to show that this man (Oropeza) has in his possession certain nude photographs, and if this evidence is destroyed, I'll appeal to the highest court!"

Judge Brusatori shot a finger of caution at Duncan, warning him to put on "no more displays like this." "I think the court is due an apology."

"I apologize for possibly raising my voice," Duncan conceded. He explained he fears any photographs Oropeza may have might be destroyed. "We consider this the most vital information we have," said Duncan.

The defense is apparently trying to produce a nude or semi-nude picture of Mrs. Kellam in an effort to discredit the prosecution's first witness.

After adjournment, Judge Brusatori called all attorneys into chambers, where the defense attorneys asked the judge to call the warden to prevent destruction of any photographs Oropeza may have.

Judge Brusatori asked prosecutor Bales to phone the warden. As Bales spokes with Warden Fred R. Dickson, explaining what the judge had said about the convict's constitutional rights, Duncan yelled: "Get off the phone!"

Judge Brusatori himself took over the telephone and got the warden's assurance that photographs and papers in Oropeza's possession would be preserved.

Earlier in the afternoon, Mrs. Kellam had testified she had taken "semi-clothed" pictures of herself into the prison but she insisted they were not "nude" photographs.

All day yesterday, four defense attorneys took turns quizzing Mrs. Kellam, delving into her background.

Mrs. Kellam described how she injected heroin into herself with a home-made hypodermic needle. She said she took heroin from about Oct. 28 until Nov. 13 last year. She said she is the mother of four, that her husband is in San Quentin for narcotics violation, and that she took heroin-buying trips to Mrs. Pauline Herrera's home in Los Angeles.

Accused of conspiracy to smuggle dope into San Quentin are Mrs. Herrera, 31; Mrs. Marie Frances Hall, 47; prison inmate Benjamin Gonzalez, 28, Mrs. Herrera's brother; and inmate Richard Rodrequez, 34. All four have different attorneys representing them.

wide planning and the creation of a state planning department.

The committee, which started deliberations at noon yesterday, was still in session approaching 4 a.m. today. Their determinations will be presented to the delegates tonight or possibly tomorrow morning.

Also scheduled tonight is presentation of the policy statements on foreign affairs, human rights and television which were prepared by the five regional issues conferences.

This afternoon, Nancy Strawbridge of Belvedere will take the rostrum to nominate for endorsement Paul Leake of Woodland for re-election as member of the state Board of Equalization from the third equalization district, which includes Marin. Leake was expected to be endorsed without opposition.

This afternoon too, the delegates were to hear U.S. Sen. Clair Engle and Ted Sorenson, special assistant to President Kennedy. Tomorrow morning, the featured speaker will be Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota.

In accepting the endorsement, Governor Brown pictured Richard M. Nixon "running around like Chicken Little in the well known children's classic, shouting the sky is falling."

He lashed Nixon again for accepting the support of the "John Birch Society and its extremist allies" and pledged that "I want no support from either extreme. I will not appear on platforms with communists or their sympathizers —or with the lunatic right." And he challenged Nixon to join in the fight against "political primitives."

To the cheering crowd, Brown called the CDC "the strongest and most influential grass roots political organization in America" and accepted Nixon's suggestion that they engage in "a bare-knuckle scrap."

Lt. Gov. Glenn M. Anderson accepted the endorsement with "confidence" in re-election of both Governor Brown and himself, "if we tell the people the truth about our record, and make sure the people understand."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Simpson's Resignation Ends Able Career Here

Dr. Raymond J. Simpson's resignation as assistant superintendent of San Rafael Schools as of April 1 removes from Marin County's educational field a vibrant personality. While here, he demonstrated a versatile ability that made for progress in many fields of school work.

Although his official activities in San Rafael dealt primarily with business aspects of operating the school district, Dr. Simpson's greatest interest is in education. He brings to his new position, an assistant professor of school administration at San Francisco State College, a wealth of experience that will benefit San Francisco State and its students.

His experience has covered virtually all important facets of education. He taught in elementary and high schools. He has been a principal, a business administrator and superintendent. Now, he becomes a college professor.

Dr. Simpson's service in the San Rafael schools staff started in 1957 as assistant to Superintendent Frank L. Lucas in charge of business services. Since that time, he served the schools in other important roles.

When Dr. Lucas' health became precarious, Simpson several times functioned as superintendent. When Lucas resigned last July, Simpson was named acting superintendent. He served in that capacity until October, when Bert C. Corona became superintendent.

Simpson's broad acquaintance with local educational matters and problems headed off many delays.

"He was the man with the answers," says a Marinite who closely follows the county's educational activities. Nearly always, he could immediately supply the proper answer to any question raised by School Board members or citizens at board meetings. If he didn't immediately know the answer, he knew where to find it quickly. The board placed heavy dependence in him.

Said Board President Roderick P. Martinelli on the occasion of Simpson's resignation: "There are times when the ship could well have sunk, had it not been for Dr. Simpson."

We thank him for keeping it afloat.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS—AND a new coat of paint for the Marin Golf and Country Club's safe. Even though yeggs kidnaped it from the Novato clubhouse and gave it "a ride" to Oakland, the safe stayed clammed up, keeping its $2,500 content intact until it was returned to Novato and easily opened by combination.

A BOUQUET to Don Greame, San Anselmo, on his becoming western regional director of the Nature Conservancy.

A BOUQUET to Mrs. Russell G. Warden, San Rafael, upon her election as president of the Amicus Club—and to the club's donation of $1,600 to Marin County's Aid to Retarded Children.

BOUQUETS to the Sleepers Car Club of San Rafael for its recent benefit dance to aid relatives of Watson and Larry Blankenship, killed in a recent auto crash.

A BOUQUET to Airman First Class Jim Collins for bowling the first perfect (300) game on Hamilton Air Force Base lanes.

Do You Know What Voltswagon Is? Frank Kelly Not Back In Politics

Have you ever noticed the Voltswagons scurrying around busy San Rafael streets?

That's what Probation Officer Don Olson calls the little white electric carts that meter maids use to check overparked cars in town.

Wonder how many miles they get to a volt?

THAT UNFOUNDED rumor that former Police Chief Frank Kelly might be eyeing some political post is still unfounded.

Sources close to Kelly say he returned to Marin to work for the water district because he likes the county and for no other reason—he's not interested in running for any elective job.

That immediately set tongues wagging again with other political speculation. One of which is:

Will Don Midyett, former undersheriff and now with the district attorney's office, run for the post of San Rafael police chief next year?

SAN ANSELMO ought to be the scene of a pretty good election race come April. Three posts on the council are up for grabs. Councilman Robert Rouse has resigned, and the mayor says he's not running. Furthermore, Mrs. John K. Cresap, who once had her sights on one of the city council posts, has moved out to Terra Linda. It leaves the field wide open for any and all newcomers.

A FRAIL young Oriental war bride, who works as beautician, came up in court the other day for being drunk and disorderly in a Sausalito bar. Before imposing a modest fine, the judge wanted to find out whether she had many children to support.

"Do you have any dependents?" he asked gently.

"No," she replied shaking her head. "I was married, but I divorced him."

HEAVY EQUIPMENT rolled up to an old abandoned building on Fourth Street the other day to begin tearing it down. The heavy clam-shell rose 20 feet over the roof of the decrepit structure and came down with a bang to take the first bite.

A split second later, three hoboes scurried out of the building all in different directions.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Simpson's Resignation Ends Able Career Here

Dr. Raymond J. Simpson's resignation as assistant superintendent of San Rafael Schools as of April 1 removes from Marin County's educational field a vibrant personality. While here, he demonstrated a versatile ability that made for progress in many fields of school work.

Although his official activities in San Rafael dealt primarily with business aspects of operating the school district, Dr. Simpson's greatest interest is in education. He brings to his new position, an assistant professor of school administration at San Francisco State College, a wealth of experience that will benefit San Francisco State and its students.

His experience has covered virtually all important facets of education. He taught in elementary and high schools. He has been a principal, a business administrator and superintendent. Now, he becomes a college professor.

Dr. Simpson's service in the San Rafael schools staff started in 1957 as assistant to Superintendent Frank L. Lucas in charge of business services. Since that time, he served the schools in other important roles.

When Dr. Lucas' health became precarious, Simpson several times functioned as superintendent. When Lucas resigned last July, Simpson was named acting superintendent. He served in that capacity until October, when Bert C. Corona became superintendent.

Simpson's broad acquaintance with local educational matters and problems headed off many delays.

"He was the man with the answers," says a Marinite who closely follows the county's educational activities. Nearly always, he could immediately supply the proper answer to any question raised by School Board members or citizens at board meetings. If he didn't immediately know the answer, he knew where to find it quickly. The board placed heavy dependence in him.

Said Board President Roderick P. Martinelli on the occasion of Simpson's resignation: "There are times when the ship could well have sunk, had it not been for Dr. Simpson."

We thank him for keeping it afloat.

BOUQUETS—AND a new coat of paint for the Marin Golf and Country Club's safe. Even though yeggs kidnaped it from the Novato clubhouse and gave it "a ride" to Oakland, the safe stayed clammed up, keeping its $2,500 content intact until it was returned to Novato and easily opened by combination.

A BOUQUET to Don Greame, San Anselmo, on his becoming western regional director of the Nature Conservancy.

A BOUQUET to Mrs. Russell G. Warden, San Rafael, upon her election as president of the Amicus Club—and to the club's donation of $1,600 to Marin County's Aid to Retarded Children.

BOUQUETS to the Sleepers Car Club of San Rafael for its recent benefit dance to aid relatives of Watson and Larry Blankenship, killed in a recent auto crash.

Are Birchers Taking Over Young GOP?

By CHAPIN A. DAY

'CHIP' DAY

Gov. Edmund G. Brown, speaking in Washington, D.C., recently lashed out at Richard M. Nixon for not disavowing the John Birch Society. The governor remarked that at least one unit of a Republican organization had been taken over by the Birchers. Although he didn't say so, the governor undoubtedly was referring to the Los Anglees unit of the Young Republicans. In the YRs' annual convention in Disneyland next weekend, the same leadership which took over the Los Angeles unit is making a bid to take over the Young Republican organization.

We have seen no direct evidence that Robert Gaston, chairman of the Los Angeles YRs, or any of his officers actually are members of the John Birch Society. There can be no doubt, however, that they represent the conservative, rather than the moderate or liberal segment of the Republican Party.

Gaston, son-in-law of C. S. Jones, president of Richfield Oil, steamrollered into power in the Los Angeles unit with a slate of conservatives who completely swept out all moderates and liberal officers.

Do they have the strength to take over the statewide YRs? There are about 4,000 members in the Los Angeles unit. Best estimate is that there probably are only slightly more than 9,000 YRs throughout the state.

MARIN UNIT'S membership, for example, is only about 150. This entitles our county to five regular delegates plus two other state officers who happen to be members of the Marin unit, William D. Keeler of Mill Valley, legal counsel, and Tom J. Moss also of Mill Valley, district vice president.

Wednesday night, John Clow, a CPA from Mill Valley, was elected to succeed Moss as district president. He will go to the convention as an alternate. Keeler will probably run for re-election as counsel and undoubtedly will be opposed for the job.

Marin's five regular delegates include Charles Michals of Kentfield, the county chairman; Walter McGovern of Marinwood, vice chairman; Richard Calahan of Sausalito, treasurer, and directors Clifford Gerstner of Greenbrae and Edwin Thomas of Terra Linda. There also probably will be half a dozen alternates and about the same number of non-members from Marin.

WHETHER GASTON himself will seek the presidency of the state organization or whether he will support some other candidate is still open to conjecture. What seems certain, however, is that Gaston's group will have a complete slate of candidates for all offices, including the presidency.

Two "moderate" candidates for the presidency already have announced. One is Jim Keyes of Orange County, executive vice president this year to President Pete Ashen of San Francisco, who bitterly denounced the "Birch takeover." The other is Harry Keaton, Los Angeles attorney, now serving as the YR national committeeman.

Whether both Keyes and Keaton will stay in the race in the face of a determined Gaston candidate remains to be seen. However, the battle is taking on overtones of a battle between gubernatorial supporters of conservative Joe Shell and moderate Richard Nixon.

ALTHOUGH Los Angeles has more than 40 per cent of the total membership, this does not mean it will have that proportion of the delegate votes. Deadline for delegates is not until next Wednesday.

This late date has resulted in some interesting activity. Backers of all three candidates have been out forming new YR units where no units formerly existed. If they can be organized and their membership paid up by the deadline, they get at least four delegate votes, regardless of size. So unorganized counties of the state are learning of Young Republicanism fast.

WE ASKED MARIN Chairman Michals if the Marin delegation had agreed on their candidate for president. He answered the delegation is "completely uninstructed."

But some members of the group have been quite outspoken in their feeling that the YR organization should have a solidly conservative outlook.

We'll bet Gaston's candidate gets more than a couple of the Marin County votes.

A VISITOR at our desk noted the other day that the Young Republicans were meeting at Disneyland.

"Where are they going to meet there?" he asked. "Certainly not in Frontierland!"

Recall Epidemic Gives Concern

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Marin County is being treated to a political spectacle that is the inevitable consequence of the precipitate recall of J. Walter Blair. Honest and devoted public officials are being threatened with similar ordeals because they have adopted positions at odds with those of some of their constituents.

Although Marin County's immediate needs are probably better served by having replaced Blair with Behr, circumvention of traditional elective procedures is now threatening to lead to political chaos.

An elected official cannot be expected to permit apparent public whim to guide his every decision. History abounds with examples of actions, unpopular and severely criticized in their times, which proved ultimately to have been best for society. Continued abuse of the recall may well lead to its abolition as occurred in the case of cross-filing.

Some Questions From Marinwood

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Civil service employment has never guaranteed a job to the employee who is found wanting in his job; rather, his competence to perform his duties is the only criterion that he must meet. When the Marinwood C.S.D. fire commissioners acted in the case of Mr. Ray they did so in clear conscience and in the face of gathering political pressure. In so acting they performed a community service and deserve congratulations.

Another look must be given to Ray's defenders. Are they truly interested in seeing that Ray keeps his job in spite of the Fire Commission's findings, or is there another base for their operations?

Is it just coincidence that Marinwood citizens will vote on recreation bonds in a few weeks? Is it just coincidence that these people fought the bonds when they were last presented? Is this an attempt to reinstate Ray, or is it an attempt to dissolve the C. S. D., using Ray as a convenient "red-herring"?

The C.S.D., the Fire Commission, and the recreation bonds represent an active community democracy, and I, for one, am not willing to give up democracy and substitute the voice of the "public-relation man" for the democratic voice of the community!

Thinking of shelters as many are—I wonder if there is a better example of "The Public Be Damned" policy than is shown in the LACK of bus shelters along 101 Highway.

The State Highway Commission, at considerable expense, constructed safe, convenient off-roadway bus stops. The bus company erected a steel pole to support a bus marker. During stormy weather when the buses are unavoidably late, one can get very wet while waiting.

Of course, for $25.50 a month and up, according to zones, one should not expect too much. Small wonder the highway is crowded with single passenger driven cars!

Newell Transit Views Disputed

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Theron Newell does the people of Marin County a great disservice in airing his misinformed views on rapid transit.

The Transportation Committee of the Association of Bay Area Governments has, after study, concluded that regional rapid transit, including both rail and bus, is essential to the growth and well-being of the Bay Area. This stand has been taken by many other groups and planning experts. They also realize the fact that metropolitan problems are so urgent and critical that unless counties and cities are willing to act, the final result can only be more federal action and control.

Evidence of the federal government's recognition of the need for rapid transit is Senate Bill 3278, which gives financial grants to metropolitan areas for planning of mass transit and provides for long-term low interest loans for such facilities.

Without rapid transit we will have to pay for more bridges and freeways for the 15 million people living in the Bay Area in 2020, so how can he say it is cheaper to drive? I suggest that he contact the Bay Area Rapid Transit District for accurate information on the true cost of rapid transit, and that we all try to become more well informed on this urgent subject.

Clipper Harbor Skipper

By BRUCE COLEMAN

It was in the Red River cotton and corn country in a dry part of Texas where Shirley Morgan had his initial flirtation with a boat.

Eight years old, he met a migrating, old fisherman who had rigged up a rowboat with sails and centerboard. And then, the fish catcher, whose name Morgan has forgot, and Morgan sailed off for catfish.

Mild-mannered Morgan found his way to greater waters—San Francisco Bay—a few years later and has had a love affair with boats ever since.

Wearing blue denims, a plaid shirt and non-skid shoes, Morgan works on the water at Sausalito. At night he commutes home to a hill above more water—Tomales Bay.

THEIR AMBITIOUS PLANS for further development of their Clipper Yacht Co. and its holdings are discussed by Shirley Morgan, right, and his partner, Clifford M. Pedersen, while photo on wall behind them shows the harbor in Sausalito's Marinship district as it appears now. The partially-finished marina will represent a five-million-dollar project when completed. (Independent-Journal photo)

IN SAUSALITO the 48-year-old Morgan is a partner with Clifford M. Pedersen of Kentfield in the Clipper Yacht Co.

On Tomales Bay he is a partner with his wife, Margaret, at Inverness and this partnership has produced two more boat lovers—daughters Sharon, 10, and Kathleen, 6.

Morgan and Pedersen once built their own boats, the Clipper, a 20-foot plywood sailing sloop. Since 1947, time and the sea and hard work have been good to the partners and now they have three basins where boats are anchored, plus boats in a sales room and sportsfishing boats at a special pier for that purpose. All these activities are within about a one-mile stretch in Marinship.

Modest Morgan, of Scotch-Irish descent, will give you the impression that the only thing of real importance to him is to take out his El Toro and enter the Bullship Race between Sausalito and San Francisco.

Or, to take out the El Toro in the bay of Tomales, flop a rod over the rear end of the sail boat and let the crinkles on the water drift by.

However, the bushy-browed, affable boatman continues to make improvements to his and Pedersen's partially completed marina development at Marinship.

The five million dollar project, when completed, will include the harbor, a restaurant, small shops on a boardwalk, a boatel and apartments and the sportsfishing center.

THE THREE Clipper basins, now three-fourths completed, are expected to have a 750-boat capacity. Piers will permit boatel dwellers to keep their boats at their back doors. There will be 500 parking spaces.

Crew-cut, boyish Morgan lives on Camino de Mar in Inverness and commutes to Sausalito. "I have always been a commuter," he noted.

Coming to California in 1934, Morgan soon moved from San Francisco to Sausalito so that he could ride the ferryboats back and forth to work.

Later he commuted to Vallejo during World War II when he helped build slipways at Mare Island for British frigates. Next he commuted to Richmond, working for Kaiser Co. Inc., then to Alameda when he and Pedersen built boats and, since 1958, he has commuted from Inverness to Sausalito. It takes 45 minutes.

"I was fascinated," Morgan said, "when I sailed the Red River. It wasn't much of a river except when the floods came."

Clipper Harbor Skipper

By BRUCE COLEMAN

It was in the Red River cotton and corn country in a dry part of Texas where Shirley Morgan had his initial flirtation with a boat.

Eight years old, he met a migrating, old fisherman who had rigged up a rowboat with sails and centerboard. And then, the fish catcher, whose name Morgan has forgot, and Morgan sailed off for catfish.

Mild-mannered Morgan found his way to greater waters—San Francisco Bay—a few years later and has had a love affair with boats ever since.

Wearing blue denims, a plaid shirt and non-skid shoes, Morgan works on the water at Sausalito. At night he commutes home to a hill above more water—Tomales Bay.

THEIR AMBITIOUS PLANS for further development of their Clipper Yacht Co. and its holdings are discussed by Shirley Morgan, right, and his partner, Clifford M. Pedersen, while photo on wall behind them shows the harbor in Sausalito's Marinship district as it appears now. The partially-finished marina will represent a five-million-dollar project when completed. (Independent-Journal photo)

IN SAUSALITO the 48-year-old Morgan is a partner with Clifford M. Pedersen of Kentfield in the Clipper Yacht Co.

On Tomales Bay he is a partner with his wife, Margaret, at Inverness and this partnership has produced two more boat lovers—daughters Sharon, 10, and Kathleen, 6.

Morgan and Pedersen once built their own boats, the Clipper, a 20-foot plywood sailing sloop. Since 1947, time and the sea and hard work have been good to the partners and now they have three basins where boats are anchored, plus boats in a sales room and sportsfishing boats at a special pier for that purpose. All these activities are within about a one-mile stretch in Marinship.

Modest Morgan, of Scotch-Irish descent, will give you the impression that the only thing of real importance to him is to take out his El Toro and enter the Bullship Race between Sausalito and San Francisco.

Or, to take out the El Toro in the bay of Tomales, flop a rod over the rear end of the sail boat and let the crinkles on the water drift by.

However, the bushy-browed, affable boatman continues to make improvements to his and Pedersen's partially completed marina development at Marinship.

The five million dollar project, when completed, will include the harbor, a restaurant, small shops on a boardwalk, a boatel and apartments and the sportsfishing center.

THE THREE Clipper basins, now three-fourths completed, are expected to have a 750-boat capacity. Piers will permit boatel dwellers to keep their boats at their back doors. There will be 500 parking spaces.

Crew-cut, boyish Morgan lives on Camino de Mar in Inverness and commutes to Sausalito. "I have always been a commuter," he noted.

Coming to California in 1934, Morgan soon moved from San Francisco to Sausalito so that he could ride the ferryboats back and forth to work.

Later he commuted to Vallejo during World War II when he helped build slipways at Mare Island for British frigates. Next he commuted to Richmond, working for Kaiser Co. Inc., then to Alameda when he and Pedersen built boats and, since 1958, he has commuted from Inverness to Sausalito. It takes 45 minutes.

"I was fascinated," Morgan said, "when I sailed the Red River. It wasn't much of a river except when the floods came."

Morgan planned to go to school when he first came to San Francisco, but, he said, "the way things developed, I had to go to work."

He first got a job carting heavy mail sacks from the old post office to Libby, McNeill and Libby in San Francisco. "We started at the crack of dawn," he said, "and had the mail sorted by 8 o'clock when the wheels arrived."

MEET SHIRLEY MORGAN—

He's Mr. Boating In Southern Marin

Kaiser's Permanente Metals Corp. in Richmond.

"At Richmond I had more of a free hand to study methods and things I liked in the shipyard business," Morgan said. "We handled all estimating of man hours."

Staying at Richmond until the end of the war, Morgan left Kaiser rather than be transferred to Detroit into the automobile business and took a job as purchasing agent with a ship repair company in Alameda. "That lasted about six months when bidding got over their head," the boat builder said.

At this time Pedersen and Morgan decided to look into boat manufacturing. Morgan said Ernie Nunes of Sausalito asked him about marketing a sloop to be built in kit form. "I convinced Nunes he should design one with a keel for the Bay Area," the boat builder said.

"Nunes wanted me to take him out in my boat because in those days I was beating boats with centerboards in the Richardson Bay Yacht Club. He went out with me and decided he would incorporate a keel in a new boat which turned out to be a Mercury class, a very popular boat."

MORGAN AND Pedersen decided to produce a plywood Clipper which Myron Spalding of Sausalito designed. They leased the Alaska Packers Joiner Shop in Alameda and started production with seven employees. They showed the Clipper in the Los Angeles boat show in 1947 and sold quite a few.

"We wound up building about 20 boats," Morgan declared, "but our production was faster than sales."

To assist, the two men went into the body business, installing a top a day onto some of the wartime Jeeps. "Occasionally I still see one running around. It gives me a feeling of nostalgia."

In 1948 Morgan and Pedersen bought their first piece of Marinship property, a parcel near Schoonmaker's which is now Clipper Basin No. 1. They terminated their lease in Alameda and moved operations to Sausalito. With Luther W. Conover, Clipper Yacht Co. was first to start business in Marinship following the war.

They also purchased a 12-wheel, 18-ton crane which they used in ship building to hoist boats out of water. "Most of our business was do-it-yourself repair business," Morgan related.

They ran out of space and then purchased an Army Corps of Engineers property which had been used as a contractor's administration area for the Eniwetok atomic bomb tests. This became part of Basin 2 and in 1949 two other parcels were purchased which became Basin 3.

BASIN 2 WAS developed into a sportsfishing berth and used exclusively for party boats. It is the first of its kind in the Bay Area, Morgan said.

The idea came about, Morgan told, when he was president of the chamber of commerce and the chamber held an annual Salmon Derby.

People rent berths and boats at the pier where an average of 19 sportsfishing charter boats are kept. At the head of the pier is the firm's yacht sales office. "The sportsfishing pier is separated from the regular berthing basins," Morgan said, "because people do not like the two together."

"All jigs and patterns were turned over to Hank Easom in 1951," Morgan added, "who leases the boatbuilding facilities and occasionally still turns out a Clipper, for which the company was named."

A man with large boats at his docks, Morgan prefers one of the tiniest, an El Toro. "It is my favorite, the Bullship race," says Morgan.

Morgan competed for years in Star class racing on the Bay.

"How did you do?" we asked.

"I didn't set the world on fire . . . I won a few," he said gently.

HE SAYS THE eight-foot El Toro is convenient to "pack around on the car," but adds that he would like something bigger to get back into active racing but time and other considerations haven't permitted.

Morgan's wife says the whole family sails, wherever they go that is suitable for the El Toro. "Shirley," she tells,

HUNT FOR Shirley Morgan and you are likely to find him, as did this visitor, among the boats anchored along the piers of his Clipper Yacht Harbor in Sausalito. Here he looks up from Basin 3 where privately-owned pleasure craft are moored. Morgan dates his love for boats back to a sail he enjoyed as a boy in Texas on the Red River in a rowboat that had been converted for sailing. His enthusiasm for boating grew when he came to the Bay Area. (Independent-Journal photo)

"is probably the first man to sail on the Klamath River."

She said that when Morgan sailed the river with its rapids and tricky winds, he stayed on the calm side but "the kids swarmed out of the bushes to see a sailboat on the river."

She also told how her husband sails on Tomales Bay, fishing with a rod over the stern and how one day he helped save a man and a boy from drowning while he was out fishing in winter.

"And though he loves to fish," continues Mrs. Morgan, "he doesn't like to eat fish. He prefers chicken." He does eat crab, clams and oysters, and loves steaks and hamburgers.

Morgan's mother, Mrs. Margaret Morgan of Sausalito, tells the story of the first time Morgan sailed. She said, "He bought a Star boat and couldn't wait to sail it. He took his 14-year-old sister, Phalba, with him and launched the boat while I looked on. He had bought a book 'How to Sail.' He told his sister which way to pull."

"I got so nervous," said Mrs. Morgan, "I had to go home."

THE SPARKLING-EYED Morgan said he was named Shirley after a family name, a friend of his father's. Some of his friends have named him "Shirl."

During Morgan's residence in Sausalito he was city councilman from 1954-58. He was an officer and is still a member of the San Francisco Yacht Club. Morgan was reappointed by Gov. Edmund G. Brown last September to the State Yacht and Ship Brokers Commission. He also holds the post of secretary of the Inverness Yacht Club.

Morgan was a member of the now extinct Richardson Bay Yacht Club which was located aboard the barkentine, Echo, at the foot of Napa Street.

Morgan likes to tell the story of the death of the Echo. "It was burned over a keg of beer," says Morgan, "but it kept returning."

"When the San Francisco Yacht Club took in the Richardson Bay Yacht Club in 1939 or '40," Morgan related, "we burned the Echo. But, when the weight was off the superstructure, the boat came up out of the water.

"It began to float. It took off down the bay and wiped out a couple of fishermen's moorings and endangered some of the fishing fleet on the way out. It floated out the Golden Gate. The Coast Guard decided to tow it back in. They tied it up off what is now the Spinnaker restaurant and placed a light on it.

"Then the Coast Guard called us. They said we would have to keep a light on it and get rid of it. While debating what to do with it, another storm came up and it went out to sea for a second time. This time the Coast Guard wrecked their propeller towing it in.

"We had visions of the Monterey or Mariposa hitting it in the night. They towed it in a second time and we held a meeting. Our opinion was we should blow it up.

"ONE MEMBER knew a dynamite expert in Mill Valley. Sunday morning we planned to annihilate the thing. We put dynamite aboard. We towed the Echo up to the mud flats of Richardson Bay near Strawberry Point. The charge was set. We lighted the fuse and everybody jumped in a boat.

"This big atomic blast was set at 10 a.m.. It woke everybody up and made a big cloud of spray, smoke and debris. What happened? The dynamite blew a hole about one foot wide in the hulk. Then we got a cease and desist order from the local citizenry. Another storm came along and washed it into Greenwood Beach and knocked down part of Mr. Connell's house. We ended up rebuilding his house.

"Then we were saved. The Army Engineers took over, saying they would remove all derelicts in the Bay. It was dragged onto the beach at Strawberry Point and burned."

"Morgan has quite a wit, on the dry side," according to his friend Frank (Jake) Wosser of Belvedere who calls Morgan "Casey."

"When he owned a Star boat, for exampie, he was forever breaking down. Then, he might be towed in or brought in under jury rig (improvisation).

"I remember in 1944 or 1945 he raced and won by a tremendous margin by sailing around the becalmed boats. He got in 15 or 20 minutes before the second boat finished.

"My wife said 'Well, Shirl, what happened?', referring to another possible breakdown. Morgan, referring to his winning the race said, modestly, 'Nothing.!' "

'Why Not Only Press a Suit When It Isn't Too Soiled?'

Many thrifty home-makers cannot see why a garment should be drycleaned when it doesn't appear soiled. That is just it. They cannot see. If they could see they would notice almost invisible soil. This unseen grit acts like tiny imbedded glass fragments with sharp cutting edges. The pressure of pressing increases this cutting action. Drycleaning removes this grit and adds life to the garment.

Another danger in pressing uncleaned garments is possible damage from unnoticed stains and foreign matter. Frequently, when heat is applied, these stains are "set" and become difficult if not impossible to remove. Some stains, colorless when fresh, become yellow when affected by heat or age before cleaning. Perspiration, too, will degrade a fabric and the heat of pressing will speed up that effect.

You will add greater life to any garment by having it thoroughly drycleaned before pressing. You'll give the garment a livelier appearance and better feel. If you are in a hurry, you can get fast drycleaning service. Have your garments drycleaned regularly for longer life. They'll appear better and so will you.

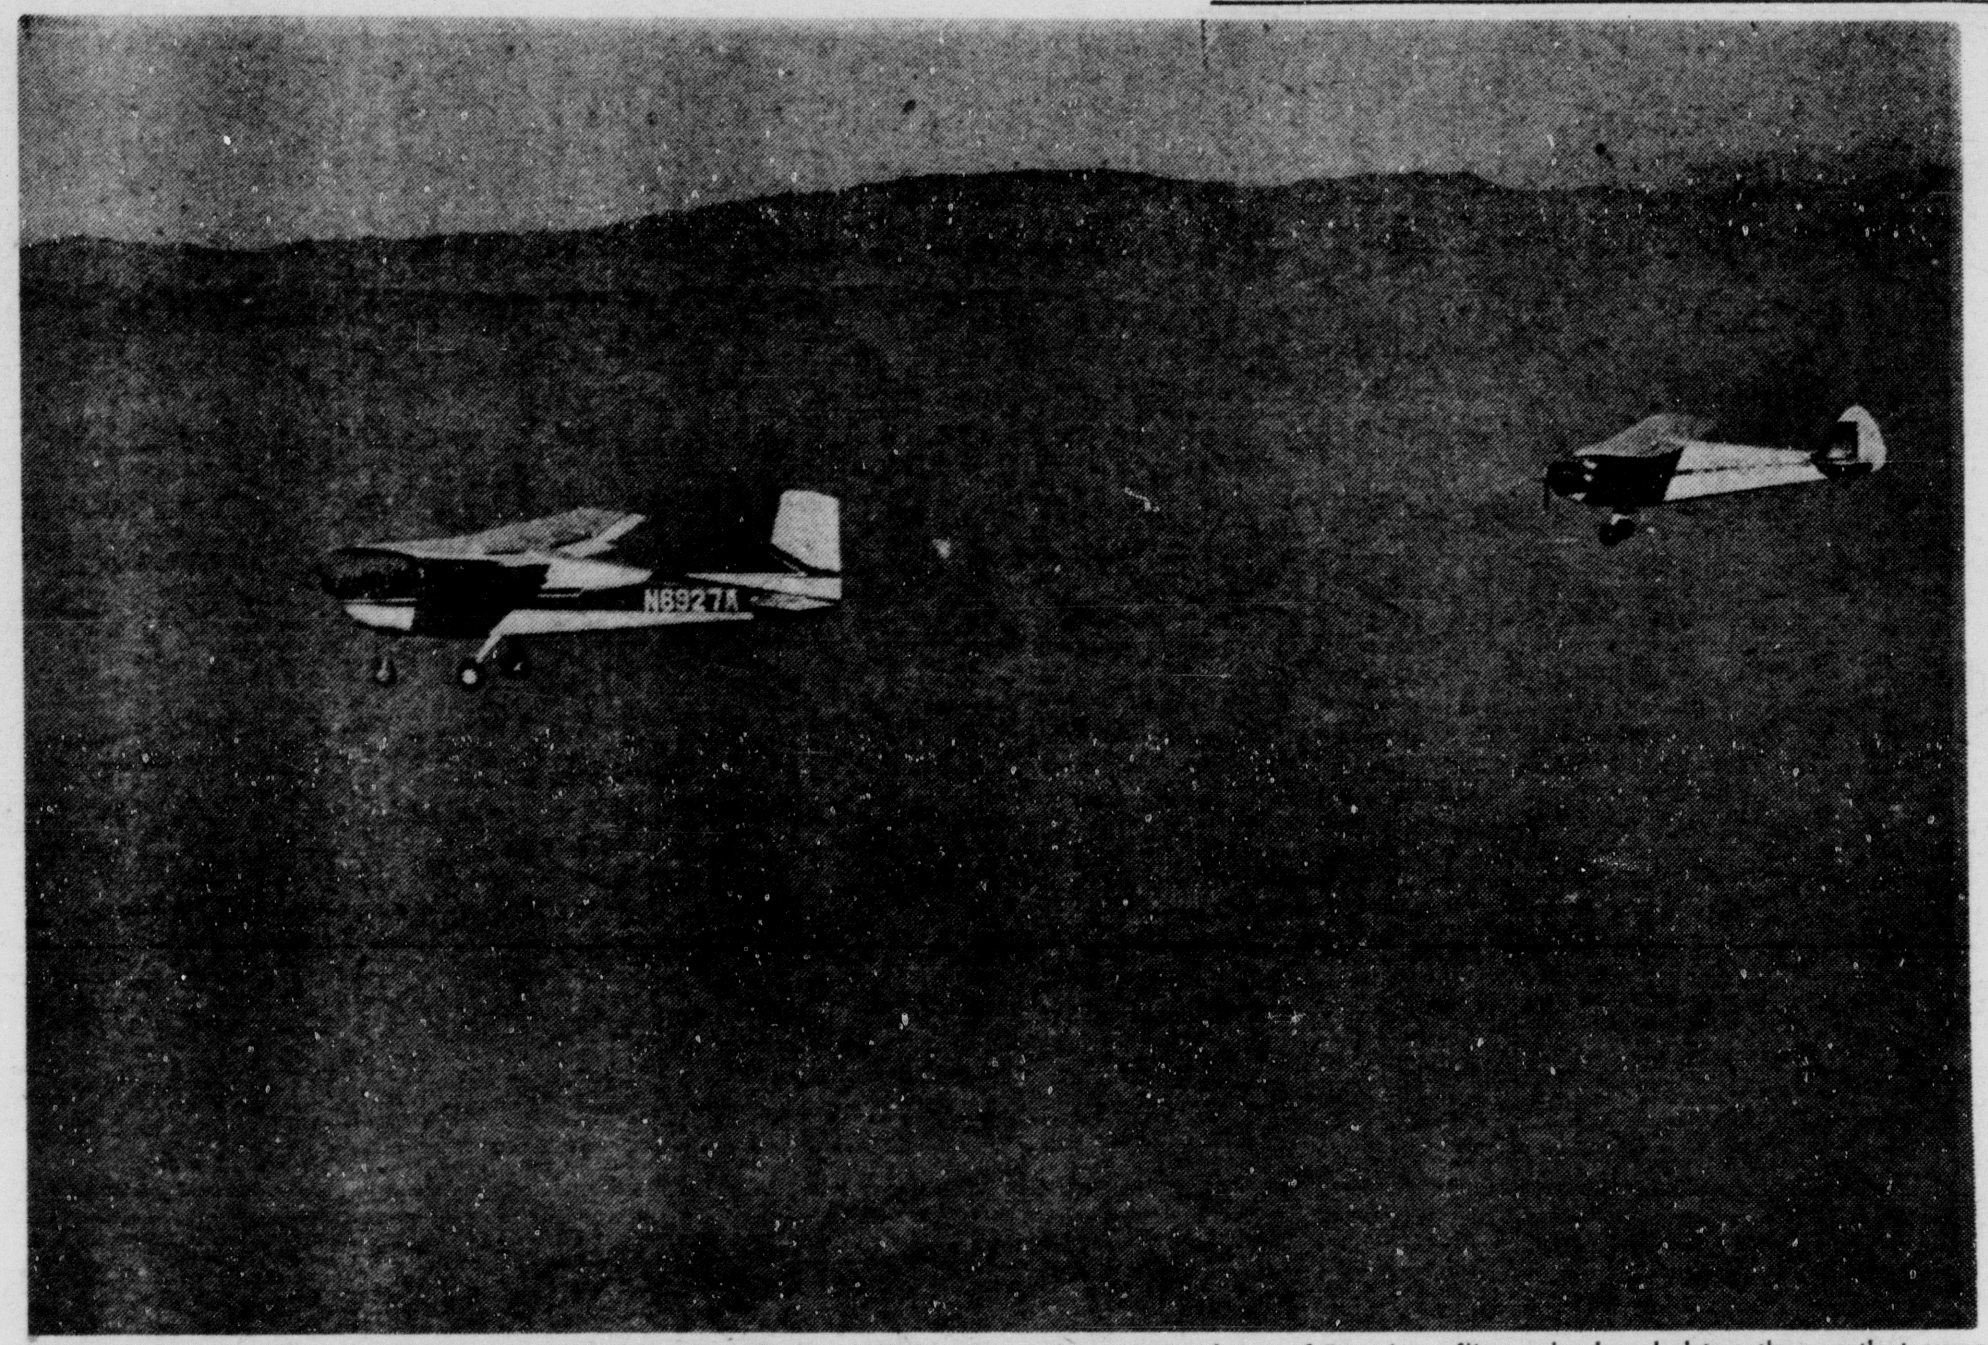
Frequently, when heat is applied, these stains are "set" and become difficult if not impossible to remove. Some stains, colorless when fresh, become yellow when affected by heat or age before cleaning. Perspiration, too, will degrade a fabric and the heat of pressing will speed up that effect.

You will add greater life to any garment by having it thoroughly drycleaned before pressing. You'll give the garment a livelier appearance and better feel. If you are in a hurry, you can get fast drycleaning service. Have your garments drycleaned regularly for longer life. They'll appear better and so will you.



THE MARIN PILOTS ASSOCIATION fleet is in the air, the Cessna 172 four-placer in the lead, the Piper Cub behind. Photographer Jim Kean took the picture from a rented Piper Cub. The association which owns the two airplanes is made up of Bay Area fliers who banded together so that ownership of a four-placer airplane such as the Cessna could be within their financial means.

Two Airplanes—And 20 Owners

By DON KEOWN

The pilot who wants to own his own four-placer airplane must first come up with from $8,000 to $10,000 to invest in the aircraft. And that's a pretty stiff price to pay for a hobby or for business transportation that will be used only occasionally.

A year and a half ago a group of Bay Area men, most of them Marinites, came up with a solution to the problem. They formed the Marin Pilots Assn. and then filed papers as a non-profit corporation. Then the corporation proceeded to acquire its first airplane, a Piper Cub. Since then a second and large plane, a Cessna 172 four-placer, has been purchased. And all 20 members of the association fly the corporation-owned planes at least once a year—some of them as often as twice a week.

The planes are based at the Marin County Airport in Novato. There the airport operator, Harry Tollefson, maintains the schedule that assigns the planes to association members for flights.

THE PIPER CUB is used primarily now by the student pilots among the association membership. The Cessna, however, is reserved for fullfledged pilots only—no students. Last year the larger craft logged a total of 600 hours in the air as the pilots used it for business and pleasure flights to more distant points such as Mexico and Palm Springs, as well as for short joyrides and sightseeing trips over the Bay Area.

If "providing flying at a cost within the reach of more people" was the basic reason for the formation of the association, it was not the only objective of the organization. The members are also keenly interested in furthering aviation in Marin County and in the improvement of flying facilities. They also keep a close eye on legislation effecting pilots and planes.

Business meetings are held at a Marin restaurant every three months.

mendation of operator Tollefson for his cooperation and hard work, the association members are critical of county airport facilities at Novato. The corporation pays $10 per month per plane for the right to keep their aircraft at the Novato field—tied out in the open. There are no hangars.

Even an adequate supply of water for washing the planes can be a problem—especially in the summer—, the pilots say.

But the pilots are quick to laud the airport's licensed airplane mechanic, L. B. Rusch. "He's a whiz," they agree. They intrust their precious aircraft to his tender care without qualms.

Better airport facilities is just one of the hopes the pilots hold for the future. They are also hoping for more association members.

"More members, more planes," they explain. At present they are considering trading the Piper Cub in on a larger plane.

"BUT WHAT WE would like to do is increase the number and variety of planes we own," they say.

Persons interested in membership are asked to contact any of the officers, all of them Marin residents. Bill Simpson of Woodacre is the president, Mel Dickson of Woodacre the vice president, and George Rotary of Mill Valley the secretary-treasurer. Hal McCarty of San Anselmo and Marvin Mendenhall of San Rafael, along with the officers, make up the board of directors.

Membership is open only to student pilots or full-fledged pilots. There is a $300 fee plus $5 a month dues to cover club expenses.

At present the members include a dentist, a doctor, airline pilots, farmers, wage-earners, business men and several from other walks of life. They hail not only from Marin, but from San Francisco, Sonoma County and other Bay Area points.

And often on their Sunday flights, their passengers are members of their families.

"We like to stress the fact that flying can be a family activity — one the wife and children can enjoy just as much as the man at the controls," says president Simpson.

The club is particularly proud of two things:

The organization's unblemished safety record. "We haven't had even the smallest mishap—not even a scratch."

And the repair and appearance of the planes. "The best looking things in the air."

The Cessna is a natty white with red and black trim, the Piper Cub white with brown trim.

"THOSE TWO airplanes are pampered like babies," Simpson says.

While it is on weekends that the planes are busiest, they also frequently take off during the week. "I would say the Cessna is in use about every other day," Simpson estimates.

He notes that the ownership of the Cessna is particularly important to the pilots because it is difficult to rent a four-place plane in Marin County. The Cessna, a 1956 plane, has been fully equipped with radio and navigational aids plus blind flying equipment. It was purchased in Petaluma about a year ago "and has been a honey of an investment."

And, the Marin pilots add, it is an investment which none of them felt they could make alone. But by pooling their funds they've been able to provide themselves with just the kind of aircraft they wanted. They experience the thrill of ownership along with the thrill of flying. And they want other Marin men who fly to join with them in the Marin Pilots Assn. and share those thrills.

A MECHANICAL CHECK of one of the San Rafael city school system's buses is conducted by California Highway Patrolman Paul Zensius, school bus officer for Marin, with Lyndell Webb, transportation superintendent for the San Rafael schools, on hand to hear the officer's suggestions. Our Children Ride In Safety

California Highway Patrol Keeps Close Watch On Buses That Transport School Youngsters

By DON KEOWN

School buses travel 1,250,000 miles a year in Marin County, carrying their precious cargo of children between their homes and their schools.

It is, the California Highway Patrol will tell you, the safest ride in the world. Every precaution is taken to prevent accidents. Both drivers and vehicles are subjected to rigorous examinations to detect human or mechanical flaws. And the children themselves are carefully instructed in procedures that eliminate unnecessary risks while boarding, riding or leaving the buses.

The man in charge of the safety program in Marin County is California Highway Patrol Officer Paul Zensius. And he is proud of the fact that during the seven years he has headed the program "we have not had an injury to a single child while in transport."

THAT HAPPY record is the result of constant vigil on the part of the patrol, school administrators and teachers, the drivers and the children themselves.

Of the 33,410 students enrolled in Marin public, private and parochial schools, approximately 15,000 are transported daily by bus to and from their schools. Included in this total, incidentally, are 169 handicapped students who pose special problems and receive the special care they deserve.

The job of providing transportation falls on the shoulders of 138 drivers, about half of them women, who operate 85 school buses of varying sizes for 18 districts plus private and parochial schools.

Every one of those buses must be inspected by the highway patrol at least once a year. And those inspections are thorough, covering 48 different items from the overhead flasher lights on the roof to the muffler system below the floorboard. Buses found to be in an unsafe condition cannot be operated until corrections are made. And if the patrol decides that the age and general condition of the bus is such that it is permanently unsafe, then the schools have no alternative other than to remove it from service.

Drivers, too, must convince the patrol beyond the slightest doubt that they are fit for their responsible assignment. Before a license to drive a school bus is issued, the aspirant must pass a written test of 100 questions with a grade of 94 per cent or better. He must also pass an oral exam which places heavy stress upon his or her ability to get along with children. He must pass a driving test that covers such factors as mechanical ability to handle the bus, observance of road rules and such important attributes as alertness, good judgment, calmness, etc.

EVERY DRIVER must earn an American Red Cross standard first aid card—and take a refresher course every three years. Every driver must pass a physical examination including a thorough eye examination.

Finally, drivers are fingerprinted and checked for past criminal offenses. Should that check-up turn up a felony conviction or a conviction for any crime other than a lesser traffic violation, certification as a school bus driver is refused. Drunk driving, reckless driving or injury hit-and-run driving convictions also disqualify the applicant. And should an investigation of the files of the State Department of Motor Vehicles reveal an excessive number of lesser traffic violations, again certification would be refused.

And certification, once granted, is subject to renewal every two years.

Once the driver has cleared these hurdles, he's certain to find his job an interesting one.

"There's never a dull moment," Zensius says.

For instance, Paul Silva, a San Rafael city school driver, can tell you about the day a high school student brought a baby alligator aboard the bus in a box. After the trip was under way, the alligator escaped from the box and was slithering up and down the aisle. "Shorty," as the driver is known to the students,

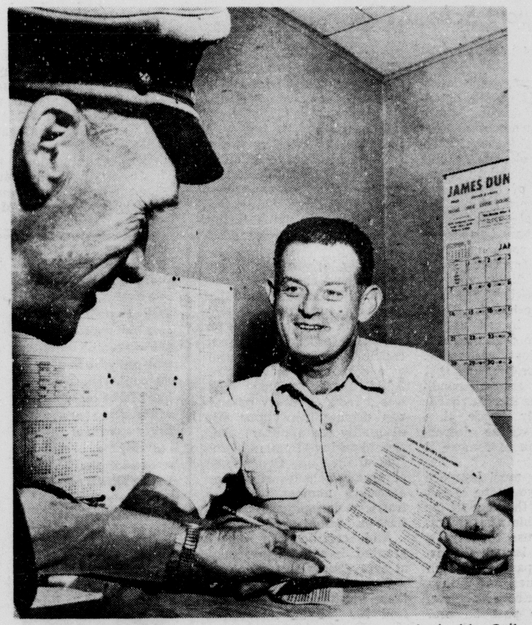
COLEMAN SCHOOL second grader Stephanie Runge, 7, gets some instruction on the proper procedure for leaving a school bus from friendly California Highway Patrol Officer Paul Zensius. Always cross the street in the front of the bus—not to its rear—little Stephanie is told.

HERE A GROUP of San Rafael youngsters demonstrate the proper method of crossing the street after leaving their school bus. They cross in the crosswalk and to the front of the bus while driver Paul Silva stands by to see them safely across. And traffic to the rear stops as required while the school youngsters are being discharged from the bus.

Guarding The Safety Of School Children

SCHOOL BUS DRIVER Mrs. Virginia Gilman holds her first aid certificate card which has just been renewed. With her is her instructor, American Red Cross volunteer Mrs. Virginia Hinshaw. The drivers are required to take 10-hour refresher courses and renew their first aid cards every three years.



THE WRITTEN TEST taken by school bus driver John Rea is checked by California Highway Patrol Officer Paul Zensius. Drivers must make a 94 per cent grade in the test, and also pass oral, physical and driving examinations to obtain their licenses which are renewable every two years.

HANDICAPPED CHILDREN receive special services from the school bus drivers. Driver Mrs. Glenna Glass here carries Adam Buck aboard her Marindale School-bound bus and waits patiently on young Steve Kuhl. Four buses and two station wagons transport handicapped children in Marin. It is not unusual for the drivers to carry their young passengers on and off their buses.

THE SCHOOL BUS DRIVERS' dream is a load of orderly youngsters such as these, all in their seats and behaving themselves. Parents, they say, can increase the safety and efficiency of school bus transportation by encouraging their youngters to conduct themselves properly aboard the buses so as not to distract the driver from his driving duties. And most Marin youngsters, they agree, are exceptionally well behaved during their daily rides to and from their schools.

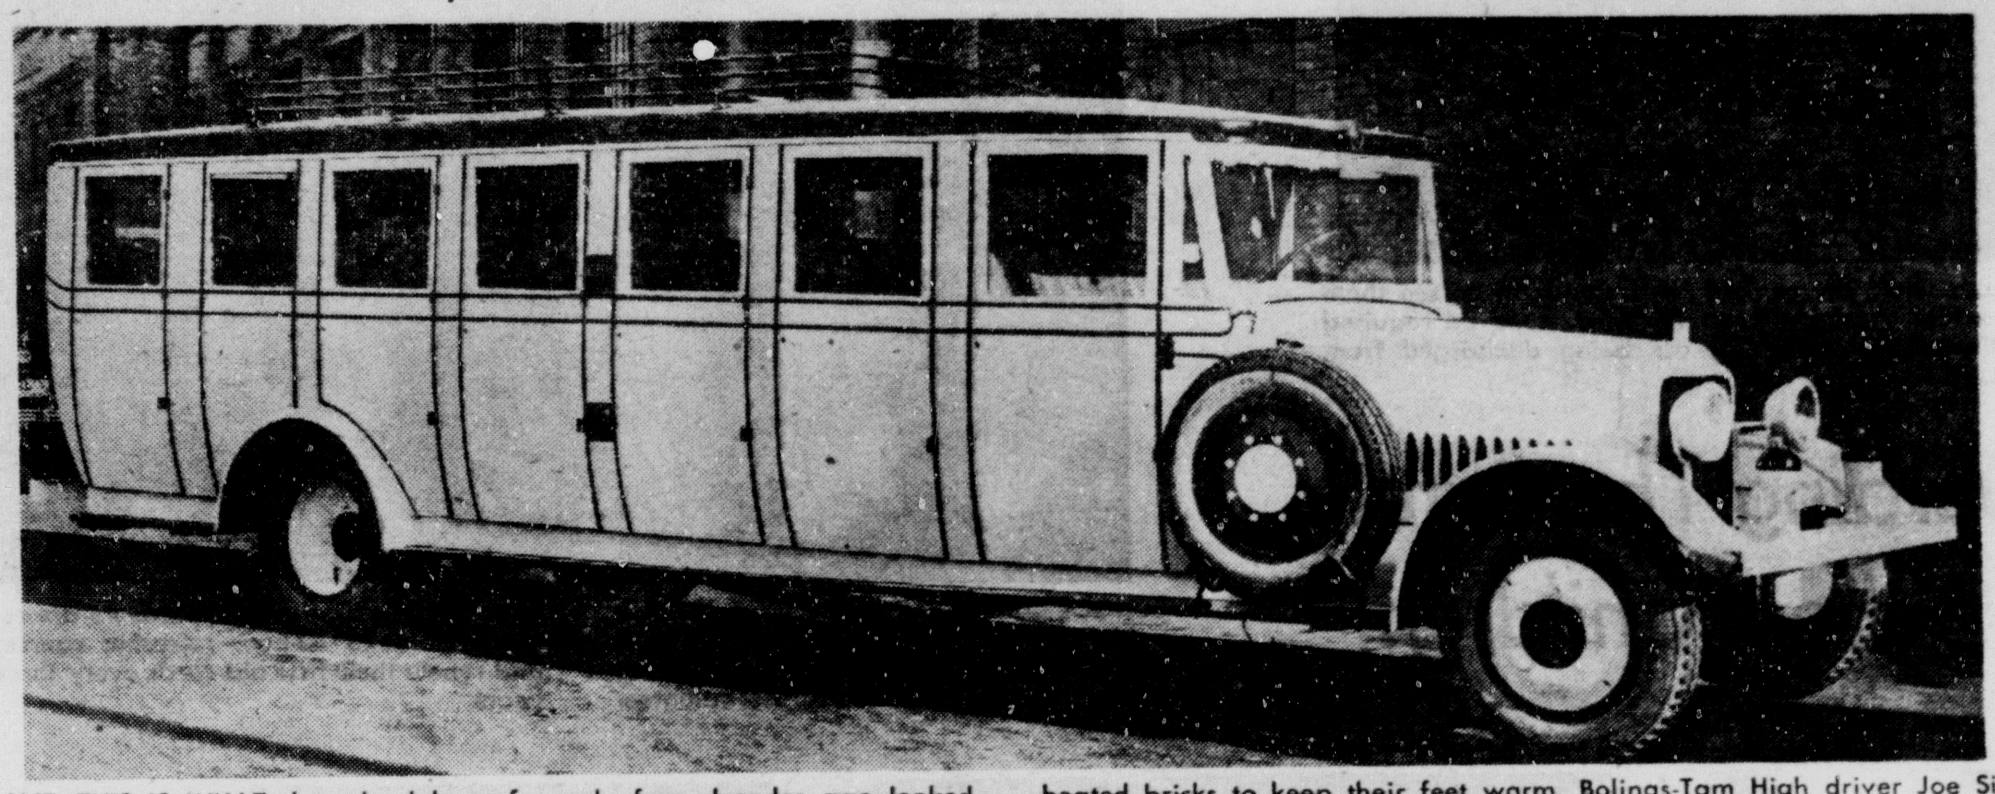
Big or small, all school buses are subjected to the same careful safety check by the California Highway Patrol to make certain that youngsters aboard have every protection possible while being transported.



AND THIS IS WHAT the school bus of nearly four decades ago looked like. Each row of seats had a separate door. Many of the students brought heated bricks to keep their feet warm. Bolinas-Tam High driver Joe Silveira recalls driving a bus similar to this back in 1930.

Keeping Our School Buses Safe

promptly pulled the bus over to the side of the road and stopped. He and all his passengers climbed from the bus while the hero of the day, one of the braver lads, finally captured the alligator by throwing his jacket over it.

Silva's cheery disposition makes him one of the county's most —popular drivers with his young passengers. He sings continually while he drives. And at his own expense he installed a radio and three speakers on his bus so that the youngsters could hear music going to and from school.

Silva isn't the only driver who has come to be regarded as a close friend. Joe Silveira has been driving the route from Bolinas to Tamalpais High School in Mill Valley over Mount Tamalpais since 1930. He carries a pick and shovel with him because of occasional slide removal problems. And he married one of his passengers. One of the high school girls he transported to Tam High as a young driver became his bride.

AL BEDERCRAX is another much-liked "old-timer" who has been driving for Mill Valley for 18 years.

Victor Avilla, a Muir Beach driver since 1942, served that community so well that its residents honored him with a dinner and a gift of a leather coat two years ago.

Driver Claudia Sanford recalls with a smile a letter she received after she had driven a group of primary children on a field trip. One of the small boys wrote to thank her for the ride and to let her know that he thought she had done a "pretty good job —for a lady bus driver."

She also recalls the "last day of school" when some of the children were taking home a number of young frogs that had been part of a science experiment and how the frogs "accidently" escaped from their containers and hopped all over the bus to the merriment of the youngsters and the perplexity of the driver.

Then there was the boy who started to get onto a school bus with a live snake wrapped around his arm.

Such occurrences show why an ability to understand and get along with children is one of the major requirements for bus drivers. But driving skill remains the foremost requirement. And officer Zensius says his Marin drivers have an ability to handle their large vehicles that, while it may be taken for granted by the young passengers, is a source of constant amazement to other observers.

AS PROOF OF this, Zensius points out that five Marin drivers have won cups during the six years the annual Northern California school bus rodeo at Oakland has been held. The rodeo poses an exacting and grueling schedule of driving skill tests that Marin drivers have tackled with astounding success.

This skill, plus the constant vigilance of the patrol to make certain that every school bus is in tip-top operating condition, have made the school bus ride your children take twice daily, five days a week, nine months of the year, "the safest ride in the world."

Officer Zensius, his fellow patrol officers, and Marin school officials are determined to keep it that way.

PUPILS ARE taught to line up in an orderly fashion to board the school buses so as to minimize confusion. Here Webster J. Smith, principal of the Coleman School in San Rafael, supervises such a line of students from his school. (Independent-Journal photo)

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

FM Multiplex Stereo is now available on another of our Bay Area stations. Station KBAY, 104.5 on your FM dial, is now broadcasting in stereo from 8 to 10 each evening. If your FM set is equipped with a multiplex adapter, you can enjoy stereo by tuning-in either KPEN or KBAY. Please call us, drop us a card, or visit us and tell us how you are receiving KBAY in your location. For those of you who don't know how FM Multiplex Stereo operates or what it is, visit us and ask us for our free booklet on FM STEREO.

A word about FM radio reception. FM radio reception is completely different than the standard AM radio that most people are familiar with. FM radio transmits the entire audio spectrum that we can hear; that is, from 20 cycles or vibrations per second (an extremely low tone) to 15,000 cycles (an extremely high tone). AM radio usually transmits only up to 5,000 cycles which means that all of the overtones and harmonics of music are lost. FM radio has no static interference when the signal is strong enough for good reception. AM radio is susceptible to all forms of static interference. Thus, with an FM receiver or tuner you can enjoy the full range of music with complete freedom from distortion and static.

We now have more than 20 FM radio stations in our listening area. Most of them program the better types of music with a minimum of talking and few, if any, of the pitch-type commercials.

FM is available to you in many forms. If you have a phonograph with a jack for a tuner, you need only to purchase a tuner and plug it in. If you have an older AM console, you may be able to add an FM tuner for a small installation modification charge. For perfection, you can replace the present electronics in your radio system with a new Component Type Complete Multiplex FM-AM Stereo Receiver, and add a second speaker to complete the system for stereo.

BOOK REVIEWS

Costain Completes Historical Series

CHARACTERS IN Thomas B. Costain's new book "The Last Plantagenets," final book in his four-volume "Pageant of England" series. Upper left is John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster and uncle of King Richard II, top center. Gaunt's son, Henry IV, top right, upset Richard's throne and inaugurated the rule of the Lancasterian branch of the Plantagenet family. At lower left is Henry V, hero of Agincourt, who fathered the last Lancestrian king, Henry VI, bottom center. That the red rose of Lancaster lasted as long as it did was largely the doing of Henry VI's iron-willed wife, Margaret of Anjou, bottom left.

THE LAST OF THE PLANTAGENETS by Thomas B. Costain, Doubleday and Co., 411 pages, $5.75. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

This the fourth and last volume in what Thomas B. Costain had intended to be a history of England, the three earlier volumes being "The Conquerors," "The Magnificent Century" and "The Three Edwards." The quartet is a popular history of the Plantagenet kings, set down by the author in a subjective manner and supplying reasons for his views on the strange deeds of the English kings, their queens and barons.

This final volume chronicles the events of 1377 to the opening of the reign of Henry VII. It stops just short of the more widely familiar events of the reigns of Henry VIII and Elizabeth the Great.

They were the dimly chronicled years of the War of Roses when the houses of York and Lancaster fought bitterly for control of the crown, the years when Richard II, the popular boy king, turned to bitter revenge; of the protest of the working folk against feudal practices; of strange preachings and new beliefs; of battles lost following the earlier years of triumphant English conquest.

Throughout his history Costain retains the focus upon the strengths and the shortcomings of the leading figures, including sufficient pomp and drama to capture the interest of the most cursory reader in the strange events of England of the Middle Ages.

As a climax the book offers considerable argument for the possibility of the innocence of Richard III in the mysterious disappearance of the two young princes in the tower.

YOUR TEENS AND MINE by Eleanor Roosevelt and Helen Ferris, Doubleday and Co., 189 pages, $2.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

That wise woman, Eleanor Roosevelt, tells here how, during her growing-up years, she learned to overcome shyness and acquired poise and self-confidence. She tells her story because she knows teenage girls today are wrestling with those same problems. And she hopes they will benefit from her experiences.

Helping the former First Lady in telling her story is her good friend, Helen Ferris. And what they have to say should be a guide and inspiration to girls passing through the growing-up process. This is vastly superior to most books of its kind.

ON DESERT TRAILS by Randall Henderson, Westernlore Press, 347 pages, $5. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

"There are two deserts," writes Randall Henderson. "One is a grim, desolate wasteland. It is the home of venomous reptiles and stinging insects; of vicious thorn-covered plants and trees and unbearable heat. This is the desert seen by the stranger speeding along the highway, impatient to be out of the 'damnable country.' . . .

"But the stranger and the uninitiated see only the mask. The other desert — the real desert . . . holds rare gifts: a health-giving sunshine; a sky that after the sun goes down is studded with diamonds; a breeze that bears no poison; a landscape of pastel colors such as no artist can reproduce . . ."

The love that Henderson, longtime editor of Desert Magazine, feels for this second desert shines through this quotation, and through the pages of "On Desert Trails." He knows well and loves well the Great American Desert which lies between the Rockies and the Sierra, and he tells its story well.

"On Desert Trails" takes the reader back through history to the Catholic padres and the Mormon immigrants, over the trails of prospectors and Indians—and on the bypaths of today's macadamed highways.

Lt. Joseph C. Ives is in its pages, churning up the Colorado in the steamboat Explorer (long afterward to be found buried beneath the drifted sands of a dry Mexican Valley). Death Valley Scotty is there, building a legend; and Everett Ruess, wandering, painting, writing —until he wandered to his death. Indians are there, gem hunters, scientists, explorers.

Henderson loves his subject, and has the ability to impart this to his writing. The result is a book bound to be interesting to anyone not utterly prejudiced against all facets of existence beyond the board room, the bar room and the bed room.

CONFORMITY AND DEVIATION edited by Irwin A. Berg and Bernard M. Bass, Harper and Brothers, 449 pages, $6.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

No light reading this. It is aimed at the advanced student of social and clinical psychology as an up-to-date picture of the entire range of research and experiment in the field of conformity and deviation—all compressed into a single volume.

It is the result of a symposium arranged by editors Berg and Bass and held in 1960 at Louisiana State University where both were then teaching.

Contributors include respected social scientists from a number of leading universities. In some cases the presentations represent research and experimentation over periods as long as 25 years. None of the material has been published before, a considerable portion of it represents new discoveries and theories.

An added bonanza for the scholar is the very complete bibliography on the field of conformity and deviation.

But, as we noted at the outset, this is not intended for the only casually interested.

The four short "encores" on side two are chestnuts, but they benefit from fine fiddling.

It is no superficial perusal of conformity and deviation in today's society. It is a probe in depth by men who are experts in the subject. And their findings are presented for the further edification of those who have already acquired some knowledge in the field and desire more.

THE PAGEANT OF JAPANESE HISTORY by Marion May Dilts, 368 pages, $6.50, Longmans, Green and Co. Reviewed by Wat Takeshita.

This is an easy - to - read, panoramic sweep of Japanese history—political and cultural — from Japan's misty beginnings to 1960. It describes Japanese life from the stone age to modern days of color television.

Because it covers a 2,600-year span of history, the book does not dwell on any single aspect or era but touches the highlights with vivid descriptions and fine illustrations of exotic court life, arts, and political changes.

This is the third edition of Miss Dilts' book, first published in 1937. Several chapters have been revised, and two new ones are added to pick up pertinent aspects of World War II, American occupation, and Japan today.

A chart on Japanese history, divided by eras (E.g. Nara, Heian, Kamakura) and correlated to events in the Western World, is provided for quick reference. The book is of value to both the casual visitor to Japan and to students of Japanese history and the arts.

PICCO—THE SAD ITALIAN PONY by Louis Slobodkin, Vanguard Press Inc., $2.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

During a trip to Italy, Louis Slobodkin, Caldecott award winner and one of the most consistently successful of our children's book authors, was enchanted by the little donkeys and ponies that pulled carts in which youngsters took rides. And so, naturallly, he decided to write and illustrate a book about them.

It is the story of Picco, a pony with a sad look on his face, and what two children, Alfredo and Gina, did to cheer him up.

Delightfully told, charmingly illustrated, the book can't help but make a hit with the small child. It's typical Slobodkin, which means top-flight.

WHAT'S HE BEEN UP TO? by Eugene Fern, Dial Press, $2.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Finding a suitable book for the child in the pre - school and kindergarten category is a difficult assignment. But here is one that fits the bill.

Fern writes about Reginald, the baby elephant, and how his curiosity and a butterfly got him into trouble. The simple story is written in such a way as to make for ideal reading to the pre-school boy or girl. And Fern has added illustrations that are real eye-catchers — splashy and colorful. The illustrations alone should fascinate the toddlers.

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

FM Multiplex Stereo is now available on another of our Bay Area stations. Station KBAY, 104.5 on your FM dial, is now broadcasting in stereo from 8 to 10 each evening. If your FM set is equipped with a multiplex adapter, you can enjoy stereo by tuning-in either KPEN or KBAY. Please call us, drop us a card, or visit us and tell us how you are receiving KBAY in your location. For those of you who don't know how FM Multiplex Stereo operates or what it is, visit us and ask us for our free booklet on FM STEREO.

A word about FM radio reception. FM radio reception is completely different than the standard AM radio that most people are familiar with. FM radio transmits the entire audio spectrum that we can hear; that is, from 20 cycles or vibrations per second (an extremely low tone) to 15,000 cycles (an extremely high tone). AM radio usually transmits only up to 5,000 cycles which means that all of the overtones and harmonics of music are lost. FM radio has no static interference when the signal is strong enough for good reception. AM radio is susceptible to all forms of static interference. Thus, with an FM receiver or tuner you can enjoy the full range of music with complete freedom from distortion and static.

We now have more than 20 FM radio stations in our listening area. Most of them program the better types of music with a minimum of talking and few, if any, of the pitch-type commercials.

FM is available to you in many forms. If you have a phonograph with a jack for a tuner, you need only to purchase a tuner and plug it in. If you have an older AM console, you may be able to add an FM tuner for a small installation modification charge. For perfection, you can replace the present electronics in your radio system with a new Component Type Complete Multiplex FM-AM Stereo Receiver, and add a second speaker to complete the system for stereo.

The Theater Bug Bit John King Hard

School Teacher Turns Play Director After His Regular Work Day Ends

By ANNE HICKS

In May of 1935, a tall, thin, rather gawky young man of 17 walked out on an improvised stage at San Rafael High School and captivated an audience with his direct, realistic portrayal of a 60-year-old neurotic father.

On that evening he was bitten hard by the acting bug and, after 27 years, knows now that there is no known immunization for victims of this malady.

JOHN KING is now 44 years old, no longer gawky, the father of three, and is considered by most professional as well as amateur theatrical people in the area to be one of the real "pros" in Bay Area theater. Throughout the years he has acted in or directed more plays in the flourishing Marin County little theater movement than even he can remember.

King became seriously interested in the theater as a career after he graduated from San Rafael High. He worked the summer after graduation in a Ross Valley summer show called "Night Over Taos," which was directed by Cameron Prud'homme, who subsequently became a Broadway and Hollywood actor.

While he was still in high school, King went to San Francisco to work once a week with a group called the San Francisco Radio Guild. They used to do mystery-adventure serials — the listener waited anxiously each week to "see how he got out of it." The serials were written at the last minute, and as the actors were rehearsing the first part just before going on the air, the writer (who also doubled as the producer-director) was busily writing the last.

King recalls, "This was a good thing for training in line reading because you were reading one line aloud and in your mind reading five lines ahead so you knew what would be coming."

THE RADIO experience, King feels, was valuable in that it was all off-the-cuff and the actor could not and did not depend on the army of technicians who surround him in present day television. King believes that because of the great number of technicians constantly hovering about, the actor is almost secondary —or at least gets the feeling he is. The radio director, if there was one, was the "man with the stop watch who was there to slow you up or hurry you depending upon the time." He seldom, if ever, offered any suggestions on character interpretation.

After the war, King, who had spent five years in the service (he was a statistical officer with the 509th Compositive Group, the Air Force group that dropped the atomic bomb on Hiroshima), went to New York to see if he could get a start in the theater as an actor. He played two summer stock shows and directed one ("The Vinegar Tree"), but decided that a career in the theater was a pretty long haul at that stage. He was then married and had one child, so he decided to come back to California to get his teaching credential which he did at the University of Southern California, the school from which he graduated in 1939. Interestingly enough, he came back to his alma mater—San Rafael High—to teach and has been on the faculty there for 10 years. He is now chairman of the English department.

WHY DOES an actor want to direct?

King, who is currently directing the upcoming Sausalito Little Theater production, "Two for the Seesaw," says, "I suppose it's a question of wanting to play the whole play yourself. Every actor, of course, in immersed in the play as a whole but the director needs to be that much more so." The play opens in Sausalito next Friday night and will run for four consecutive weekends.

There are only two parts in "Seesaw" — the male and female leads. But King took longer to cast this play than any he has directed in the past. And when confronted by anxious Little Theater board people, he pointed out "you have to have as close to perfect casting as you can get with a two-member cast since one of the two is never off the stage and you really have to hold your audience strongly."

Working with only two actors, however, has its advantages because King remembers when he directed Molnar's "Liliom" for the Sausalito Little Theater eight years ago, he had such a large cast —about 30 people—that when the curtain went up, he was amazed to find so many people on the stage because they were never all there at the same time before.

King, who lives in Sausalito with his wife, Virginia, daughters Sally, 16, Hillary, 13, and son Bennett, 10, radiates an air of authority that comes from years of experience and the actor's realization that here is a well-disciplined theater man who is at the same time extremely sensitive. People who have worked with him say that because of this insight and sensitivity, he has the ability to identify quickly and easily with the characters in the play and help interpret them to the actors.

Why does a man who works a full day as a teacher get into this maelstrom of activity that during a rehearsal period may find him working up to 15 or 16 hours a day?

King says, "In teaching, there are definite rewards but sometimes it takes a number of years before you can see the result of your effort. In a play, you start with nothing and within a short period of time you see the end result of your efforts set before you."

JOHN KING, who is still afflicted by the bite from that bug experienced 27 years ago, thinks that "a director should act occasionally if he is capable of doing it in order to refresh himself on the actor's point of view." Although he has directed for the Sausalito Little Theater among many other plays these notable successes, "Look Back in Anger," "Waltz of the Toreadors," and the recently acclaimed "Playboy of the Western World," it is just possible that John King, director, may be on hand during tryouts as a candidate for an actor's part in one of the coming little theater productions.

AT THE HELM for Sausalito Little Theater's newest production, "Two for the Seesaw," which opens next Friday night for a four-weekend run of Friday and Saturday evenings, is John King, who directs with an air of authority that stems from a wealth of theatrical experience. (Photo by Herman Arrow)

Costain Completes Historical Series

CHARACTERS IN Thomas B. Costain's new book "The Last Plantagenets," final book in his four-volume "Pageant of England" series. Upper left is John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster and uncle of King Richard II, top center. Gaunt's son, Henry IV, top right, upset Richard's throne and inaugurated the rule of the Lancasterian branch of the Plantagenet family. At lower left is Henry V, hero of Agincourt, who fathered the last Lancestrian king, Henry VI, bottom center. That the red rose of Lancaster lasted as long as it did was largely the doing of Henry VI's iron-willed wife, Margaret of Anjou, bottom left.

THE LAST OF THE PLANTAGENETS by Thomas B. Costain, Doubleday and Co., 411 pages, $5.75. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

This the fourth and last volume in what Thomas B. Costain had intended to be a history of England, the three earlier volumes being "The Conquerors," "The Magnificent Century" and "The Three Edwards." The quartet is a popular history of the Plantagenet kings, set down by the author in a subjective manner and supplying reasons for his views on the strange deeds of the English kings, their queens and barons.

This final volume chronicles the events of 1377 to the opening of the reign of Henry VII. It stops just short of the more widely familiar events of the reigns of Henry VIII and Elizabeth the Great.

They were the dimly chronicled years of the War of Roses when the houses of York and Lancaster fought bitterly for control of the crown, the years when Richard II, the popular boy king, turned to bitter revenge; of the protest of the working folk against feudal practices; of strange preachings and new beliefs; of battles lost following the earlier years of triumphant English conquest.

Throughout his history Costain retains the focus upon the strengths and the shortcomings of the leading figures, including sufficient pomp and drama to capture the interest of the most cursory reader in the strange events of England of the Middle Ages.

As a climax the book offers considerable argument for the possibility of the innocence of Richard III in the mysterious disappearance of the two young princes in the tower.

YOUR TEENS AND MINE by Eleanor Roosevelt and Helen Ferris, Doubleday and Co., 189 pages, $2.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

That wise woman, Eleanor Roosevelt, tells here how, during her growing-up years, she learned to overcome shyness and acquired poise and self-confidence. She tells her story because she knows teenage girls today are wrestling with those same problems. And she hopes they will benefit from her experiences.

Helping the former First Lady in telling her story is her good friend, Helen Ferris. And what they have to say should be a guide and inspiration to girls passing through the growing-up process. This is vastly superior to most books of its kind.

ON DESERT TRAILS by Randall Henderson, Westernlore Press, 347 pages, $5. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

"There are two deserts," writes Randall Henderson. "One is a grim, desolate wasteland. It is the home of venomous reptiles and stinging insects; of vicious thorn-covered plants and trees and unbearable heat. This is the desert seen by the stranger speeding along the highway, impatient to be out of the 'damnable country.' . . .

"But the stranger and the uninitiated see only the mask. The other desert — the real desert . . . holds rare gifts: a health-giving sunshine; a sky that after the sun goes down is studded with diamonds; a breeze that bears no poison; a landscape of pastel colors such as no artist can reproduce . . ."

The love that Henderson, longtime editor of Desert Magazine, feels for this second desert shines through this quotation, and through the pages of "On Desert Trails." He knows well and loves well the Great American Desert which lies between the Rockies and the Sierra, and he tells its story well.

"On Desert Trails" takes the reader back through history to the Catholic padres and the Mormon immigrants, over the trails of prospectors and Indians—and on the by-paths of today's macadamed highways.

Lt. Joseph C. Ives is in its pages, churning up the Colorado in the steamboat Explorer (long afterward to be found buried beneath the drifted sands of a dry Mexican Valley). Death Valley Scotty is there, building a legend; and Everett Ruess, wandering, painting, writing —until he wandered to his death. Indians are there, gem hunters, scientists, explorers.

Henderson loves his subject, and has the ability to impart this to his writing. The result is a book bound to be interesting to anyone not utterly prejudiced against all facets of existence beyond the board room, the bar room and the bed room.

CONFORMITY AND DEVIATION edited by Irwin A. Berg and Bernard M. Bass, Harper and Brothers, 449 pages, $6.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

No light reading this. It is aimed at the advanced student of social and clinical psychology as an up-to-date picture of the entire range of research and experiment in the field of conformity and deviation—all compressed into a single volume.

It is the result of a symposium arranged by editors Berg and Bass and held in 1960 at Louisiana State University where both were then teaching.

Contributors include respected social scientists from a number of leading universities. In some cases the presentations represent research and experimentation over periods as long as 25 years. None of the material has been published before, a considerable portion of it represents new discoveries and theories.

An added bonanza for the scholar is the very complete bibliography on the field of conformity and deviation.

But, as we noted at the outset, this is not intended for the only casually interested.

THE PAGEANT OF JAPANESE HISTORY by Marion May Dilts, 368 pages, $6.50, Longmans, Green and Co. Reviewed by Wat Takeshita.

This is an easy - to - read, panoramic sweep of Japanese history—political and cultural — from Japan's misty beginnings to 1960. It describes Japanese life from the stone age to modern days of color television.

Because it covers a 2,600-year span of history, the book does not dwell on any single aspect or era but touches the highlights with vivid descriptions and fine illustrations of exotic court life, arts, and political changes.

This is the third edition of Miss Dilts' book, first published in 1937. Several chapters have been revised, and two new ones are added to pick up pertinent aspects of World War II, American occupation, and Japan today.

A chart on Japanese history, divided by eras (E.g. Nara, Heian, Kamakura) and correlated to events in the Western World, is provided for quick reference. The book is of value to both the casual visitor to Japan and to students of Japanese history and the arts.

It is the story of Picco, a pony with a sad look on his face, and what two children, Alfredo and Gina, did to cheer him up.

Delightfully told, charmingly illustrated, the book can't help but make a hit with the small child. It's typical Slobodkin, which means top-flight.

The illustrations alone should fascinate the toddlers.

Tricks For Special Effects When You Paint Your Walls

You'll Find That The Results Are Practical As Well As Decorative

There are various special ways to provide interesting and decorative effects for the painted wall. Included among these special effects are the two-tone stipple, texture paints, multi-colored paints, and striped designs. All are practical as well as decorative, for they produce durable, resistant finishes, and their patterned designs hide dirt and small irregularities.

To achieve a two-tone stippled effect, the wall is first painted in the chosen background color by brush or roller and permitted to dry thoroughly. A quality alkyd or oil base paint should be used because latexes dry too quickly to be stippled. Next, the color to be stippled—either contrasting or harmonious—is brushed heavily onto a piece of metal, wood or cardboard. Press a slightly moistened sponge into the brushed-out paint and then press it against the wall. This transfers the color in an irregular pattern to the base coat. Continue the process until the entire wall or walls are covered.

IF YOU PREFER, a special stippling brush or roller can be used to produce the two-tone stippled effect. When the wall has been painted and allowed to dry, the stippling color is brushed or rolled on. While this coat is still wet, the wall is patted with a stipping brush or gone over with a stippling roller. This results in small areas where the under color shows through in an irregular design.

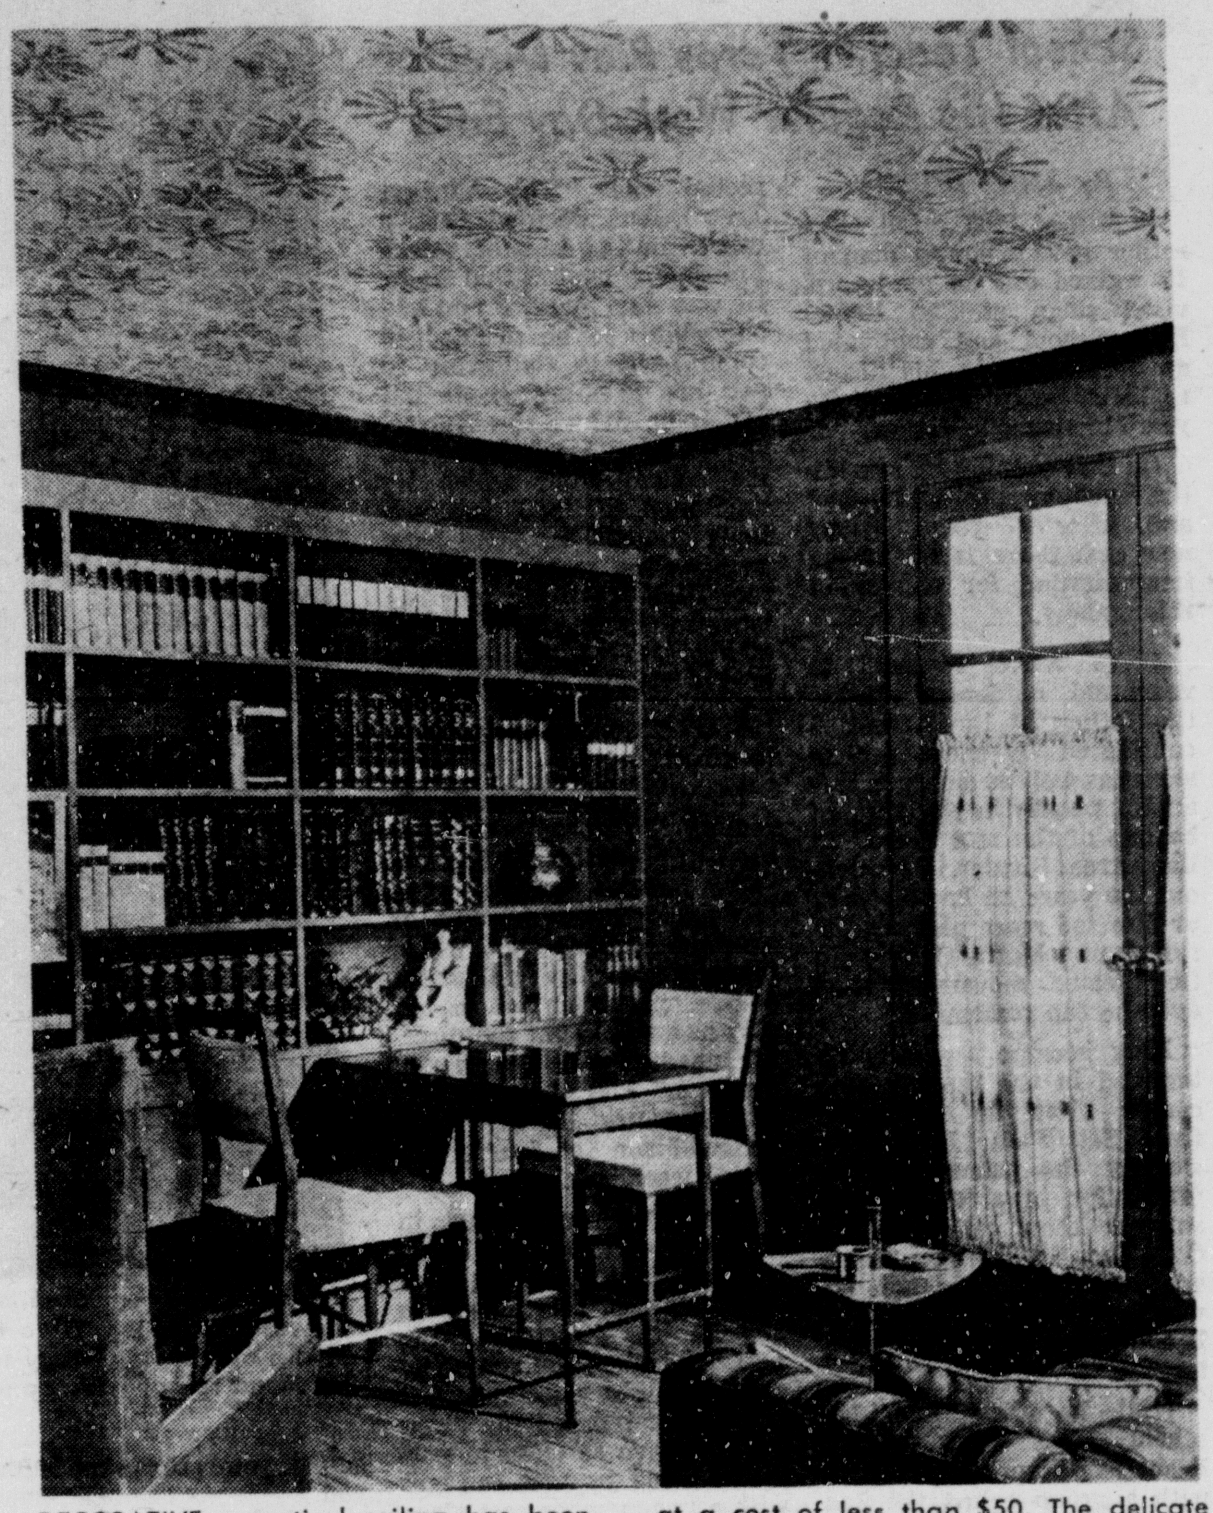
Texture paints have a heavy consistency which provides a rough, plaster-like effect. They are particularly good for coating old, scarred walls which would otherwise require a complete replastering job. Quality texture paints are available in ready mixed form in a wide color selection. There are also texture powders which can be added to certain quality paints to provide this textured effect. For the latter, check with your paint dealer to determine which type of paint you should use with the texture powder.

The texture paints are brushed on the wall surface. Then, while the wall is still wet, the pattern is created by going over the surface with a sponge, whisk broom, wad of crumpled paper, or any other object that will produce a design. Special rollers are also available for this purpose.

Multi-color paints permit two or more different colors to be applied at the same time from the same source. There are many different color combinations available in quality multi-color paints, including those containing silver or gold flecks, which are ideal for formal decor. Most multi-color paints are sprayed on. There are some, however, which can be applied by brush.

STRIPED WALLS are also very attractive, and this effect is simple to achieve with the help of masking tape. The wall is first painted in the desired background color. When this first coat is dry, strips of masking tape are applied, either horizontally or vertically. The strips can cover the entire wall surfaces, or just certain areas, depending upon the desired effect. When the tape has been securely anchored in place, the exposed areas are painted in the chosen contrasting color. After these areas have dried, the tape is removed, to reveal the decorative striped effect.

One of these special effects can be used to decorate all the walls of a room, or just one wall can be treated to create an interesting focal point. The surface preparation for these special finishes is the same as for all painting jobs. The surface should be clean. Any cracks or holes should be filled with commercial filler or patching plaster and sanded smooth, unless a texture paint is to be used.



DECORATIVE acoustical ceiling has been added to this 10 by 14 foot family room at a cost of less than $50. The delicate printed design of the tile blends perfectly with the room's traditional decor.

California Gardeners Too Often Guilty Of Snubbing Perennials

Perennials deserve a better shake than they get in California. For one reason or another, gardeners ignore them, choosing instead the easy-come, easy-go ways of our popular annuals.

This is due, no doubt, to our unusual growing conditions. We can get year round use from annuals, while perennials are seasonal only and prefer their winter rest. Thus we more often rely on annuals and use them like aspirin for quick relief.

But perennial bedding plants have special beauty, and their proper use is a challenge which makes gardening the more enjoyable. Moreover, they have the added advantage of permanence—or relative permanence—and need only to be cut back after bloom or left to come again another day. It's a wise gardener who learns to use them as well as annuals to give his garden color.

No California garden should be without Delphinium, Penstemon, Shasta Daisy, Transvaal Daisy or Primrose. And no gardener has really earned the label until he's tried many other lovely such as Columbine, Phlox, Sweet William, Bleeding Heart or Border Pinks.

The challenge in their growing lies not in the culture which is easy, but in putting them to the proper use. Perennials, depending on the variety, can be fit into backgrounds or foregrounds; spotted in the border or squeezed into pocket-sized beds; spilled over a retaining wall or hung in pots; featured in beds of their own or side by side with annuals; used as an edging or as a rock garden specialty.

In planting perennials, keep in mind that you won't be uprooting them after bloom as we would annuals. Take a little extra time now to work the soil deeply and thoroughly, adding manure and humus to a depth and of an amount that will accommodate the planting until it is ready for division — usually at least three years—or in the case of perennials that do not divide, for even longer. Let there be no questtion that a bit of extra effort in preparing the soil now will pay off in big dividends through the years.

Daphne—A Fragrant Shrub That Does Well In Marin

There may be shrubs with more potent scent than the Daphne, but none that is more enticing. Like a woman who wears just the right amount of the very best perfume, the Daphne has nothing but charm and allure.

Count your blessings that this deliciously fragrant shrub does so well in Marin. Even in coastal gardens, it blooms often enough if planted up against a sunny south or west wall.

In bloom or out, the Daphne is an attractive evergreen shrub with clean, crisp foliage and restrained growth. It is excellent in foundation plantings or in the evergreen border, and it mixes equally well with Dwarf Junipers, perennial Candytuft or Camellias, to name but four of many possible companions.

Several varieties are to be found, but the Daphne we commonly call by that name is the familiar Winter Daphne. It is a favorite for buttonholes or flat dish arrangements, being distinguished by the waxy, white-to-pink blooms. The foliage on Winter Daphne is either a solid deep green or fringed with ivory margins.

Winter Daphne itself comes in a variety of forms. In one, the blooms are pure white, in another they are a good deep pink.

The preferred culture is to provide a well drained, acid soil with generous amounts of leaf mold worked in at planting time and part shade in summer except for cool coastal gardens. Frequent watering the year round is the rule in warmer gardens. Along the coast, however, a brief drying out period in late summer seems to induce a heavier bloom than would normally prevail. Don't ask us why. It just does.

REAL CHALLENGE

Lot That Slopes Has Advantages

The man with a sloping lot to landscape might curse his luck at first. But once he's come to terms with the site, he'll find that a slope has distinctive advantages.

For one, there's the view. When you live on a slope, you almost have to have a view on the downside. But more important to the gardener is the backdrop for planting which the upslope provides to his back garden. With care, this can be as effective to the garden stage as the backdrop is to a stage in the theater. There's a real challenge here for the gardener willing to take it.

The best method for handling an upslope (or a downslope for that matter) is to terrace it. Build low retaining walls—out of redwood, railroad ties, masonry, including broken concrete — along the contours of your slope. Then plant each as you might a raised bed, with Alpine type dwarfs, trailing plants and choice wall or rock plants. Bulbs and annuals can be employed for spot color, too, and a modest grouping of trees if shade from that quarter is desired.

In planting this slope, it is wise to consider the matter of watering. Unless you have arranged for a sprinkler system, shrubs that need moisture should be planted close in to the outdoor living perimeter.

Trailing plants give the gardener more show for his money on hillside plantings. Such rugged little shrubs as Ground Morning Glory, which cascades gray foliage and blue summer flowers are perfect for terraced slopes and should be used frequently. Others such as the semi-prostrate Santa Barbara Rosemary or the procumbent English Lavender are good. Ivy Geraniums will give months of cascading color, as will many annuals and perennials to be found in nurserymen's show yards.

Prostrate Junipers are excellent choices as is another conifer, the squat Mugho Pine or our natives, Carmel Creeper and Point Reyes Ceanothus. Don't stop with these, though. They are merely a starting point from which you can start your garden backdrop. Before you're through with it, you'll find more material than you can really fit in.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Don't attempt to work up a seedbed for a new lawn if the ground is too wet. You'll wind up doing twice as much work.
- Most dormant pruning should be completed in February. Shrubs and trees that flower in spring, however, should not be pruned until after bloom.
- Soil improvement is a good winter job. Use manure, peat, leaf mold to lighten heavy soils, bulk up light ones.
- Barefoot fruit trees should be planted now. Seek a nurseryman's advice about the best varieties for your garden and area.

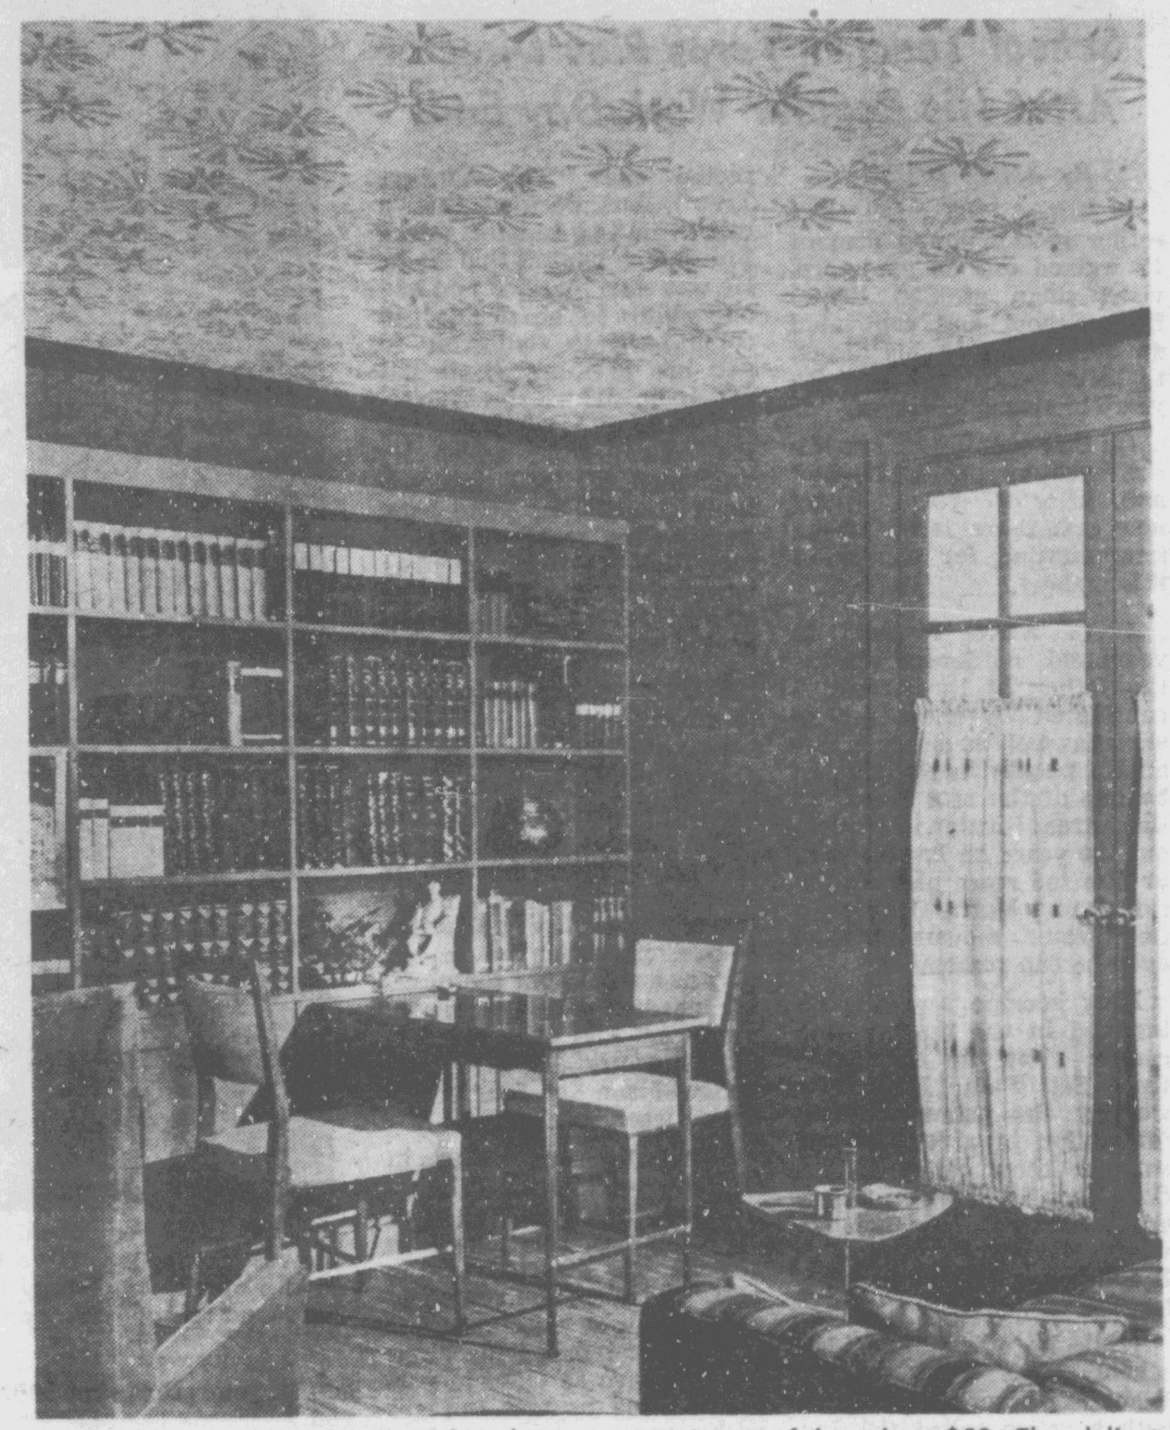
Tricks For Special Effects When You Paint Your Walls

You'll Find That The Results Are Practical As Well As Decorative



DECORATIVE acoustical ceiling has been added to this 10 by 14 foot family room at a cost of less than $50. The delicate printed design of the tile blends perfectly with the room's traditional decor.

There are various special ways to provide interesting and decorative effects for the painted wall. Included among these special effects are the two-tone stipple, texture paints, multi-colored paints, and striped designs. All are practical as well as decorative, for they produce durable, resistant finishes, and their patterned designs hide dirt and small irregularities.

To achieve a two-tone stippled effect, the wall is first painted in the chosen background color by brush or roller and permitted to dry thoroughly. A quality alkyd or oil base paint should be used because latexes dry too quickly to be stippled. Next, the color to be stippled—either contrasting or harmonious—is brushed heavily onto a piece of metal, wood or cardboard. Press a slightly moistened sponge into the brushed-out paint and then press it against the wall. This transfers the color in an irregular pattern to the base coat. Continue the process until the entire wall or walls are covered.

IF YOU PREFER, a special stippling brush or roller can be used to produce the two-tone stippled effect. When the wall has been painted and allowed to dry, the stippling color is brushed or rolled on. While this coat is still wet, the wall is patted with a stipping brush or gone over with a stippling roller. This results in small areas where the under color shows through in an irregular design.

Texture paints have a heavy consistency which provides a rough, plaster-like effect. They are particularly good for coating old, scarred walls which would otherwise require a complete replastering job. Quality texture paints are available in ready mixed form in a wide color selection. There are also texture powders which can be added to certain quality paints to provide this textured effect. For the latter, check with your paint dealer to determine which type of paint you should use with the texture powder.

The texture paints are brushed on the wall surface. Then, while the wall is still wet, the pattern is created by going over the surface with a sponge, whisk broom, wad of crumpled paper, or any other object that will produce a design. Special rollers are also available for this purpose.

Multi-color paints permit two or more different colors to be applied at the same time from the same source. There are many different color combinations available in quality multi-color paints, including those containing silver or gold flecks, which are ideal for formal decor. Most multi-color paints are sprayed on. There are some, however, which can be applied by brush.

STRIPED WALLS are also very attractive, and this effect is simple to achieve with the help of masking tape. The wall is first painted in the desired background color. When this first coat is dry, strips of masking tape are applied, either horizontally or vertically. The strips can cover the entire wall surfaces, or just certain areas, depending upon the desired effect. When the tape has been securely anchored in place, the exposed areas are painted in the chosen contrasting color. After these areas have dried, the tape is removed, to reveal the decorative striped effect.

One of these special effects can be used to decorate all the walls of a room, or just one wall can be treated to create an interesting focal point. The surface preparation for these special finishes is the same as for all painting jobs. The surface should be clean. Any cracks or holes should be filled with commercial filler or patching plaster and sanded smooth, unless a texture paint is to be used.

"COME INTO my garden . . . but only if you're invited," is what this patterned gate of Western pine region wood says in an attractive but convincing fashion. The gate is a handsome and effective way to keep strays—human and otherwise—out of the yard. Long on privacy, it is not short on looks.

California Gardeners Too Often Guilty Of Snubbing Perennials

Perennials deserve a better shake than they get in California. For one reason or another, gardeners ignore them, choosing instead the easy-come, easy-go ways of our popular annuals.

This is due, no doubt, to our unusual growing conditions. We can get year round use from annuals, while perennials are seasonal only and prefer their winter rest. Thus we more often rely on annuals and use them like aspirin for quick relief.

But perennial bedding plants have special beauty, and their proper use is a challenge which makes gardening the more enjoyable. Moreover, they have the added advantage of permanence—or relative permanence—and need only to be cut back after bloom or left to come again another day. It's a wise gardener who learns to use them as well as annuals to give his garden color.

THREE PEOPLE who like to sing get together on "Perry Como's Kraft Music Hall" this coming Wednesday at 9 p.m. on KRON. There's host Como and guest Lena Horne, both of whom not only like to sing but also do it quite well. And then there's Perry's other guest, George Burns. He sings with enthusiasm aplenty but a minimum of finesse.
